

HOOVER, LANDON JOIN IN STOP-WILLKIE DRIVE

PHILADELPHIA, June 27 (INS)—Senator Robert A. Taft won a heavy favorite's role for the Republican presidential nomination today on rumors that he will receive endorsements from both former President Herbert Hoover and Alf M. Landon before a decisive ballot is taken at the convention. From reliable sources, it was reported that both Hoover and Landon have turned "thumbs down" on Wendell L. Willkie, New York utility executive. On every side Republican leaders said, "Willkie has been stopped."

BUCHAREST, June 27 (AP)—The Rumanian Grand Council, with King Carol presiding, has decided to accede to a Soviet Russian ultimatum calling for the cession of Bessarabia and the northern part of the Province of Bucovina, diplomatic quarters reported today.

French Warships Join British Navy To Battle Nazis

LONDON, June 27 (AP)—Britons rejoiced today as important units of the French fleet were reported today to have refused to surrender under terms of the Petain government's armistices with Germany and Italy.

Instead, they were said to be assembling at French North African ports to continue the fight against the axis powers under direction of the British navy and in cooperation with Gen. Augustus Nogues, French high commissioner in North Africa.

Reports from Gibraltar said French warships and aircraft were assembled at Casablanca, French Moroccan port on the Atlantic coast. Similar reports from Algiers, Spanish port near Gibraltar, said the French fleet had left Gibraltar for Casablanca and for Algiers, a Mediterranean port.

Presumably these ships would not have been permitted to leave Gibraltar, where they would have been under British command, unless their officers chose to continue the war against the Axis.

REPUDIATE ARMISTICE

Other French warships are known to have been stationed at Alexandria under British command when the armistices were signed, and there was speculation here that these ships also might be defying the terms.

Columbia Broadcasting System in New York picked up a German radio broadcast which said that French warships had been withdrawn from the Straits of Gibraltar. The radio said the 42,000-ton British battle cruiser Hood, two other British cruisers and two torpedo chasers have already arrived at Gibraltar.—Editor's Note.

The ultimatum, which the informants said was to expire at 10 p. m., (4 p. m. EDT.), was said also to have demanded that Rumania give Russia railroad bases at Constanta and certain Danube ports.

Berlin radio advices said one of these ports was Tulcea, control port at the mouths of the Danube.—Editor's note.

Foreign military attaches received reports from the provinces that huge squadrons of Russian warplanes were flying over Bessarabia and northern Bucovina.

The ultimatum, it was said, was handed to Rumanian Minister Davideanu at Moscow by Premier-For-foreign Commissar Vyshelskiy Molotov last night.

INDO-CHINA ARMS TO FIGHT INVASION BY JAPAN'S ARMY

HONGKONG, June 27 (AP)—French Indo-China military authorities took extensive precautions to repel invasion today as the spearhead of Japanese forces moved along the Chinese side of the Indo-China frontier.

Women and children were moved inland from the coast and back from the Kwangsi and Yunnan province border zones, and a large French liner waited at the Indo-China port of Haiphong to take them from the country, if necessary.

The Japanese moves along the border were said by Japanese military leaders to be aimed at throwing a cordon along the entire frontier to prevent arms and supplies from reaching Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Chungking forces through Indo-China.

The French were apprehensive, however, in view of Tokyo dispatches telling of the Japanese government's intention to play a stronger hand regarding Far Eastern possessions of European powers, possibly establishing a "protectorate" over them.

The governor-general of Indo-China was said to be acting independently of the government of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, but was said to have recognized the validity of the Japan-Japanese agreement for a joint policing of the China-Indo-China border.

This was concluded by the Paul Reynaud government two days before it resigned.

Henceforth, however, all negotiations between Japan and the China are to be conducted by the governor-general himself, it was said.

A strict censorship has been clamped down on all news sent out from Indo-China, but it was learned the situation is quiet, although tense.

French Indo-China To Resist Invasion

LONDON, June 27 (AP)—General Charles de Gaulle announced today he had received "definite information" from French Indo-China that General Catroux, who was reported from Bordeaux to have been replaced as governor there, would resist any attempted invasion of that French possession.

De Gaulle's headquarters here announced the French national committee "had reason to believe" Gen. August Nogues, French commander-in-chief in northern Africa, is taking "all necessary steps for organizing resistance."

Aides of de Gaulle have been communicating with French colonial and naval leaders to rally the French to fight on against Germany and Italy.

Japan to Tell Hitler Its Colonial Aims

TOKYO, June 27 (AP)—Japan will send her roving envoy to Germany to tell Adolf Hitler personally—if a meeting can be arranged—her views regarding Oriental possessions of France, Great Britain and the Netherlands, an official source disclosed today.

Her emissary is Naotake Sato, who represented Japan in concluding a recent economic agreement of Italy and Japan and Manchukuo.

If Sato is unable to see Hitler, he has been instructed to explain Japan's position to the Nazi foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop.

Informed Tokyo sources said Japan might declare a protectorate over French Indo-China and Dutch holdings in East Asia.

British Pound Soars in N. Y. On Peace Hint

NEW YORK, June 27 (AP)—The open-market rate of the British pound soared today on buying ascribed by foreign exchange dealers chiefly to "peace rumors."

At one time England's currency was quoted around $3.85, up about 15 cents.

The Canadian dollar rallied with sterling.

Thinned out by war-time exchange control, the market was susceptible to quick moves on dealers' noted.

Hoover and Landon Cool Toward Willkie As Balloting Nears

CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA, June 27 (INS)—The Republican National Convention, having already sewed an "anti-war" label onto the party standard, reconvened today to choose a presidential nominee from a field of 13 hopefuls headed momentarily by Ohio's Sen. Robert A. Taft, youthful racket-busting Thomas E. Dewey, Utilities Magnate Wendell L. Willkie and Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan.

Before the actual balloting could get under way, however, six candidates were placed in nomination, a formality disposed of last night in behalf of Taft, Dewey, Willkie and the New York State publisher, Frank Gannett.

Formally nominated in short order today were Vandenberg, Hartford MacNider, Iowa's favorite son candidate, Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, Gov. Arthur H. James of Pennsylvania and Gov. Harlan F. Bushfield of South Dakota.

WILLKIE GLITTER DIMS
Foregoing the hullabaloo that attends a formal nomination—speeches, demonstrations, etc.—were former President Hoover, Permanent Chairman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, and Senator Arthur Capper, veteran agrarian from Kansas.

In the downtown hotels, a Taft fever was on the rise and Dewey backers were fighting to hold a formidable array of delegates calculated to give him the lead on the first ballot.

The Willkie star had lost some, but far from all of its glitter, while the Vandenberg, Bridges and Gannett camps were talking deadlock and how good their candidates would look when it came.

Nothing could be confirmed, but visitors to the Hoover headquarters were departing with claims that he was frowning on the Willkie candidacy despite the fact he held a friendly half-hour conference with the spectacular utilities operator only yesterday.

LANDON ALSO SILENT

These same visitors professed to see in Hoover's intonations a slight disposition to the cause of Taft, but the gentleman from Palo Alto was saying nothing that one could put his finger on.

Similarly, cagey If M. Landon, the party's standard-bearer in the disastrous 1936 campaign, was keeping his own counsel, apparently unwilling to commit himself as yet.

Between them, Hoover and Landon are credited with controlling 157 to 200 of the convention's 1000 delegates. Hoover has practically taken himself out of the candidate picture, but his backers said he would nevertheless receive 20 or more votes on the first roll call.

Talk of a Taft-Dewey ticket still continued, but diminished to some extent because of the reported refusal of Dewey to negotiate with the Taft forces on a deal that would give the gentleman from Ohio the presidential nomination, relegating Dewey to the vice-presidency.

The 1940 platform—adopted by the convention unanimously after the resolutions committee had wrangled over it for 10 days—appeared to have satisfied virtually everybody.

POPULAR PLANKS

Particularly popular with the delegates was its strong stand against American involvement in Europe's war, a powerful preparedness platform, a condemnation of DEMONSTRATION FOR TAFT—Marching about Convention Hall, enthusiastic supporters of Sen. Robert A. Taft wave standards and placards in noisy demonstration after the Senator's name was placed in nomination.

MAGIC OF WILLKIE'S NAME WOWS G. O. P. DELEGATES

By AUSTEN LAKE

PHILADELPHIA, June 27—Wendell Willkie wowed 'em! No sooner had young Congressman Charles Halleck of Indiana tagged his name for G. O. P. nomination than the convention hall was turned into a saturnalia with a shouting horse shoe breaking out of the floor.

State standards were uprooted as contrary-minded delegates fought for possession of the poles.

Many electors, wavering between machine loyalty and the dictates of their affections, deserted on impulse and joined the charivari as it wormed through the aisles.

Men and women made a vast cacophony of sound that subsided and swelled again and again.

Party officials and political nobility crowded to the front of the stage, stretching their necks for all the world like a Derby crowd as the horses churned down the stretch.

And intermittently the crowd would take up the chant, "We want Willkie," roaring the cadence while Chairman Joe Martin whacked his mallet on the sound box and pleaded for order.

CURIOUS SIGHT

It was a curious sight for a convention which, before late tonight, had sat apathetically gnawing its cuffs and stifling yawns. They had cheered artificially here and there—a thin, forced yell for Herbert Hoover, a robust holler for Harold Stassen.

But last night they reared back and let go with a heartfelt bellow that meant just what they said. They wanted Willkie!

Unlike the Taft and Dewey forces, which had provided whole storehouses of signs, banners, circus posters, fishbugs, fire sirens and cowbells, Willkie's following had no gadgets to aid their parade.

Taft's agents had let loose a shower of toy balloons at the moment his name was entered, colored bubbles that floated down in cascades from openings in the skylights.

Dewey's people had a forest of placard portraits mounted on handles which they poked up and down.

Willkie had nothing but his name!

FOLLOWERS HESITATE

So for a brief instant his floor following hesitated. The mezzanine slopes were a turmoil of waving hands. The building vibrated with their shouts.

But the Willkieites below were bewildered until suddenly somebody kidnapped the New York standard and started off, wrestling it from detaining hands and plunging away.

"New York . . . New York!" gasped the crowd. That was Dewey's home state! Indiana's standard followed! Then Maine, Connecticut, Delaware, California, West Virginia, Alabama, New Jersey, Minnesota, Maryland and Virginia, some of them torn from their fastenings, others conceded unanimously.

BAY STATERS FIRM

Massachusetts. There She Stands," jibed a member of the Boston press, pointing to the fixed and immobile legend of the Bay State.

For, indeed, Massachusetts' standard did not budge, although the majority of its delegation were confessed Willkie folk and intend to swell his total today or Friday after a few complimentary ballots for their favorite son, Joe Martin.

So in the midst of this emotional moment they stayed steady under Joe's anxious eye with true New England control.

Same say it lasted 19 minutes.

PLATFORM OF G. O. P. ANTI-WAR

PHILADELPHIA, June 27 (AP)

—Abandoning earlier talk of making domestic issues paramount, the Republican party started a campaign today to convince the voters that it had the best program to build adequate defenses and keep out of war.

In a platform speedily and noisily approved by the national convention yesterday, the Republicans designated themselves as the party of "Americanism, preparedness and peace."

While they avoided any direct reference to the Democratic party, they charged that the Roosevelt administration had attempted to send Congress home "so that we might be eased into the war by word or deed."

OPPOSED TO WAR

The Republicans, the platform said, are "firmly opposed to involving this nation in foreign war."

Asserting that "men who put America first" must be put in high positions, the 3000-word campaign document advocated the extension of aid to "all peoples fighting for liberty, or whose liberty is threatened."

It said, however, that this aid must not infringe on the requirements of national defense or violate international law.

The platform contended that the New Deal had "failed America" by discarding sales of American military equipment to foreign powers over the protests of defense officials.

It asserted that the New Deal had "ignored" the lessons of modern, mechanized, armed defense and said that by President Roosevelt's own statements, "we are still wholly unprepared to defend our country."

Topping this was a declaration that "only a strong and sufficiently prepared America can speak words of reassurance and hope to the liberty-loving peoples of the world."

NO THIRD TERM

The platform favored a constitutional amendment providing that no person should be President for more than two terms, but it appeared probable that this would be interwoven into the defense and peace arguments in such a way as to submerge its identity as a separate issue.

The Republicans deplored "explosive statements" by President Roosevelt against other governments, contending that they served to imperil American peace.

Bride, 18, Maimed on Honeymoon Ride

Bride of less than 12 hours, Mrs. Anthony Filippini, 18, of Arlington, suffered injuries today in an automobile crash on Newburyport turnpike which placed her name on the danger list at Maplewood Hospital, Malden.

Drs. Thomas W. and Joseph S. Leavitt took 44 stitches in wounds suffered by the young bride when she was hurled through the windshield of her new husband's car. She suffered a fractured skull, a broken nose, loss of her front teeth and other injuries.

RIDE-ROOM CUT

The 21-year-old bridegroom escaped with cuts about the face and arms in the crash that occurred when his car crashed into the rear end of a Malden-to-Lynn bus that had stopped on Newburyport turnpike, near the Melrose-Saugus line.

None of the 20 passengers in the bus were injured.

The bride, who was Miss Iona Cobham of Arlington, was married last night in Arlington to Filippini. The couple spent the night in Arlington and today were on their way to the home of his parents in Medford.

STARTING ON TRIP

There he had intended to pick up some clothing before starting on the honeymoon.

Police were told that the Filippini car was trailing the moving bus when the bus stopped and the car of the bridal couple crashed into the rear.

Robert L. Benoit of Hampton Falls, N. H., who was driving to Malden, picked up the injured couple and took them to the hospital.

5 Hurt as Bus, Truck Collide

Five South Boston residents, including three women, were injured today when a crowded Boston Elevated bus and a truck collided at the intersection of D and Sixth sts., South Boston.

Fifty-two passengers in the bus were shaken up. Treated at Boston City Hospital were Miss Catherine Lerdensky, 49, of Eighth st.; Mrs. Agnes Macadian, 42, of Sixth st.; Miss Mary O'Toole, 29, of Columbia rd.; Peter J. Kay, 43, of Seventh st.; and Edward Fabery, 18, of M st. All were released after treatment.

The bus, operated by Michael Kelleher of Quincy st., Roxbury, was en route from Elgin and O sts. to Washington and Kneeland in downtown Boston when the crash occurred.

Later, police obtained warrants charging both Kelleher and Ronald Sulon, 23, of Avoca, La., driver of the heavy transcontinental truck, with driving so as to endanger.

Both pleading not guilty before Judge Leo H. Leary in South Boston court, and each was released in $200 bail for hearing July 9.

Nicholson, Calais Hero, Captured

LONDON, June 27 (AP)—Brig. Claude Nelson, leader of the British defense of the French port of Calais, from which only 30 unwounded "Tommys" were among those rescued out of a force of 4000, was reported by an authorized source today to be a German prisoner.

Earlier this month he was said to have declined rescue when the last British unit to leave the beleaguered port was taken out after four days of fighting.

Mrs. Richard Ward, Jr., of Swampscott, one-time blonde professional dancer, today was reported bound for a career in Hollywood following a surprise Reno divorce from her socialite husband.

News of the divorce completely bewildered North Shore society circles and came as a distinct shock, even to closest friends.

The couple parted several months ago, when Mrs. Ward left for the Coast, but it was believed to be only temporary. She is interested in a motion picture career. At the present time, she is working as a model.

ON BUSINESS TRIP

Upon learning of the divorce, Mrs. Richard Ward, Sr., said the news came as a "surprise and shock to all of us."

"I had no idea she intended to obtain a divorce," she said. "And I am sure Dick didn't either."

Mrs. Ward, Sr., revealed that her son and his wife parted amicably a few months ago, when the beauty decided that she wanted a career.

Last Ship July 4, Kennedy Warns

LONDON, June 27 (AP)—United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy urged all Americans today—who do not have any urgent reason for remaining here longer," to sail for home on the U. S. liner Washington from Galway July 4.

He said the Washington, which is scheduled to sail from New York tomorrow, "is very likely to be the last American vessel to come over until after the war."

Kennedy's statement added: "The government cannot be blamed for assuming that those who do not leave now are prepared to stay for the duration of the war, come what may and to stay at their own risk."

Torch Held to Face Girl Wife Charges

SALEM, June 27—Her husband used to pinion her arms and try to see how close he could bring a lighted cigarette butt to her face; he gleefully hid her glasses so she couldn't see, Mrs. Alice E. Tilton, married at 16, testified in Probate Court here today.

Now 20 years old and the mother of two small daughters, Mrs. Tilton, who lives in Federal st., Newburyport, said her husband, Leonard, has contributed exactly $10 to the support of herself and the children since the wedding in 1936.

In asking a divorce on grounds of cruelty, she told Judge John V. Phelan that Tilton, now employed on the WPA, used to black her eyes and split her lip when she asked him to look for work.

She explained that she and her daughters, Beverly, 3, and Irene, 2, are now living with Tilton's parents.

She left Tilton in 1938 and since then has seen him three times, she said—twice in jail and the third time today in court.

Judge Phelan took the case under advisement.

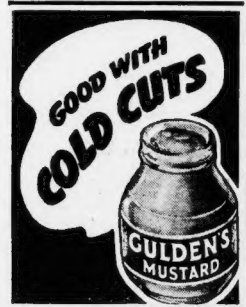

Stocks Forge New Gains

NEW YORK, June 27 (AP)—Leading stocks pushed up fractions to more than $1 a share in today's market as war tension lessened a trifle.

Steels, utilities, aircrafts and rails were in front of the move and prices were around the best near the second hour. Dealings were sluggish.

Prominent gainers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, North American, Consolidated Edison, American Water Works, Public Service of N. J., Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Chrysler, General Motors, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, Westinghouse, Sears Roebuck and Kennebec.

Bonds were narrow. Commodities edged forward. "Free" sterling rallied in terms of the dollar.

Lost Girl, 2 Boys Camped in Woods

Sought for more than 12 hours and feared lost or drowned, a 15-year-old Needham girl and two 10-year-old boys were found today in a wooded section less than two miles from their homes.

They said they had gone picnicking, had been overtaken by darkness and had spent the night in the unused garage of a big private estate off Charles River at Needham.

When two members of the police searching party came upon the missing trio, the youngsters were sitting comfortably in the sun, drying their wet feet and clothing.

They were munching a breakfast of raw carrots, dug, they said, in the garden of the estate.

The three, Mary Cameron, 15, of Marked Tree rd., Needham; her brother, John, 10, and Robert Roman, 10, of Central ave., Needham, seemed surprised that their absence from home should have caused so much excitement.

"We were all right," Mary said. "We weren't cold or hungry, frightened or anything."

"It was just that we stayed picnicking too long and it got dark."

"We knew there was a little log cabin playhouse on the estate here somewhere. So we found that and stayed there for a while, sleeping on a cot and on the floor."

"Then we got restless and started hunting around. We found the garage and there was a divan in it. We weren't uncomfortable at all."

Woman Is Near Death in Crash

Two persons were injured, one perhaps fatally, today when a South End man's auto crashed into an apartment of the Porter square, Massachusetts ave., Cambridge.

Most seriously hurt was Miss Barbara Bowles, 38, of Willow pl., Arlington.

Doctors at Cambridge City Hospital feared her skull was fractured. Her name was placed on the danger list and her condition was reported poor.

The driver, Fred G. Elliott, 32, of Harrison ave., South End, suffered lacerations of the face and a possible fracture of the lower jaw.

War Palls Birthday Of Helen Keller, 60

WILTON, Ct., June 27 (AP)—Helen Keller, the blind author and lecturer, celebrated her 60th birthday at her home here today, but it was "a day of mourning rather than a day of gaiety."

Miss Polly Thompson, secretary, who is Miss Keller's "eyes and ears," quoted her as saying:

"The world is in such a state, I cannot be gay by any manner of means."

WRITE IN SOON IF YOU WANT TO CARE FOR WAR ORPHAN

With the first contingent of refugee children due to leave Britain momentarily for the United States, New England families apply in increasing numbers to the Editor of the American for the little boys and girls.

Every letter addressed to this newspaper goes immediately to Washington, where the names and addresses of all persons who will keep children permanently or for the duration of the war are placed in the hands of American and foreign officials.

The purpose is two-fold. First, the hope is to find a home for every child England wants to send to this country. Second, every effort is being made to obtain a war baby for every responsible person who wants one.

Because the number of children expected to reach Boston, New York and Montreal is much larger than was originally anticipated, men and women who wish to assist in this charitable work and who have not indicated their desire are invited to write to the editor now.

Each request will receive full consideration.

Interesting letters in today's mail are:

MIDDLEBURY, VT.—“My husband and I have great sympathy for those little ones who must leave their parents to find new homes in a strange land.

“We are a young couple of the Catholic faith. Since we have been told that we may never have children of our own, we are anxious to adopt a little girl of two or three years of Polish, British, Belgian, Dutch or French parentage. If your request for a girl cannot be granted, then we would like a boy.

“We have a modest little home, a good educational background, a steady income, and a real desire for a child to work and plan for.

INNOCENT VICTIMS OF WAR
Orphans in England . . . Await Adoption

“Moreover, the child would have the educational advantages, the privileges and the love that a child of our very own would have.

“It is our sincere desire and prayer that these little refugees may cross the ocean safely and find peace and happiness in homes made happier by their presence.”

MANCHESTER—“We are interested in your good work of trying to place these unfortunate children in American homes.

“We are a young couple of Protestant faith with one little boy of our own, and we are in a financial position to take care of one more child. If you can find a little girl, three or four years old, of Norwegian or Dutch descent, we would be delighted to take the child.”

FEEDING HILLS—“I have four children, all girls. I lost a boy three years ago. I would be very happy to adopt one or two little French or Belgian boys, about four or five years of age.

“We shall keep the little ones for the duration of the war, but would much rather adopt them.”

NORWICH, CT.—“I certainly would like a little girl from England, about three or five years old. I have a little girl of my own, and the English daughter would be a real sister for her.”

ESSEX, VT.—“We have been married almost six years and have no children. We should therefore be most happy to adopt a war orphan. We would love to have a blue-eyed, curly haired girl under a year old, if possible.

“Both my husband and I are fond of children and would give a child all the love a father and mother could give.”

MEDFORD—“I have three children of my own. But I would gladly give a good home and an abundance of affection to three more children from ‘over there.’ My husband and I can afford the added responsibility and expense. In fact, we are eager to assume it. You see, we were both orphans, and we know how hard and cold the world can be at times.”

DORCHESTER—“As I read the letters you select from the many you receive, I cannot help thinking that Christianity is very much alive in New England. The cry of a motherless and fatherless child does not go unnoticed here.

“My husband and I will consider it a privilege to be able to shelter two boys and two girls from any of the hellish and anxious as long as the conflict continues. Those little ones did not start this needless war. There is no reason why they should be blown to pieces by bombs or suffocated by poison gas.”

LYNN—“I lost my baby girl a few months ago. I cannot ever forget the great sorrow that filled my heart as I gazed upon her little face in the tiny white coffin. That is the way women often find them feel as they kiss their little daughters goodbye, never to see them again. Yes, I’ll be only too happy to take a baby girl and to love her as I hoped to love my own child. I know my baby went to God. I would want mothers in France and England to know that their living babies are going to a safe home in a safe country.”

HYDE PARK—“Please put my name on your list of persons who will take war refugee children. I would like to be a mother to two boys or girls. It is good to feel that I may be able to do something to help out in this dreadful scourge of humanity.”

WILLISTON, VT.—“My husband and I would like very much to get a little baby girl from England. We have two little boys, but would just love a little girl if we could possibly get one.

“We would like one with blonde hair and blue eyes, quite chubby, so she would look a lot like my other two babies.

“I sincerely hope we may be one of the first in Vermont to have one of these poor little children. We will do everything in the world to make her happy.”

TAFTVILLE, CT.—“I would like to take a war orphan. Because I am Polish, I would particularly like one from Zankov, Szejrano. I have six children of my own but I feel that many of my relatives in the homeland are in grave need and I would like to help them.”

How One Scribe Sees Convention

By WALTER KIERNAN
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, June 27—Convention applause comes in two sizes—shrieks from the gallery and walls from the floor. The noises rising from the floor can be buttered and basted into votes. You cannot do anything about the noises from the gallery except open the skylight a little wider.

Both photograph well on the radio. If you were listening to the nomination speeches, you heard Mr. Wilkie elected by the "see the people" in the galleries. The "we the delegates" contingent on the floor studied its words for a long time and finally said "rah, rah" in non-inspiring tones.

Let us say a word for the platform. It has planks of sturdy oak alternating with chestnut and wistful pine. It is collapsible and can be stored in the White House storm cellar. Republicans say the Democratic platform of 1932 lies there covered with dust. They cannot find the 1936 platform.

The last Republican platform, built in 1936 to fit Alf Landon, turned out to be a toboggan licensed for coasting only in Maine and Vermont. Citizen Landon was master carpenter of the current vehicle which will do 60 just as soon as they find a way to keep the Democrats from spilling gravel on the hills.

Candidates assume a loose-kneed or semi-leaping position on the platform. If it goes down you will find the candidate safe in the life net and only shaken up a bit. Candidates do not select the platform. It is shoved under them while they are not looking.

Revolving circles claim that "the deal is on." A deal is a tight transaction between loose men and is sold only in non-refillable containers.

Under the terms of a deal, the candidate with the most nothing delivers it to a candidate with something less, for the purpose of pulling the plug on a candidate who is basking in public admiration. You can't look your best at low tide.

We have been saying Mr. Dewey for the latest reading on the barometer. From here at an early hour it looked like clear, but the fuzz hadn't settled. It might turn out Dewey after all.

Before another sun rises we may have the nominee. Consult your local almanac for the time and, if the page is missing, try the dream book.

MARTIN MAY PICK NOMINEE

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, June 27—Republican Convention Chairman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, a quiet but forceful and astute politician, today loomed as the man who may tip the scales in favor of the winner of the Republican presidential nomination.

A potential nominee himself even though he does not seek the honor, Martin is in a position to sway the votes of scores of delegates if the anticipated deadlock develops.

Martin ranks as a power in the convention because he is the leader of 168 House Republicans, managed the Congressional campaign of 1938 in which the party scored a significant come-back and has friends in every section of the country.

A close friend of Gov. Alf M. Landon, Martin has held a series of conferences with Landon on the convention and the fall campaign.

These two are known to be determined to see that the convention nominates a man who will assure election of Republican senators and congressmen as well as win himself.

Both are friendly with Thomas Dewey and Sen. Bob Taft, who have the support of the largest block of delegates. Martin, his friends indicated, will bring the two rival candidates together in the interest of party harmony before a final decision is made on the convention choice.

Martin maintains a virtual court in his small hotel suite.

The leaders of at least one state delegation, it was learned, have informed Martin that they will switch to his choice whenever he says the word.

"I've got a couple of delegates and they will go wherever Joe says," one Midwest congressman said.

Other congressmen—some of them delegates—have given similar assurances.

Lake Sees Willkie Charm in Action

some say longer, but when it sub- sided and the routine of seconding speeches began, the crowd filed toward the exits and out into the night to quarrel over taxicabs. For them the show was over.

Yet, by comparison, with the mass of marchers in the Taft and the Dewey pageants, which re- sembled halloween charivaris, Willkie's procession was small. There might have been a syn- thetic reason for this, because long before the nomination of Dewey's and Taft's names their followings were forming in the corridors, drawing posters, rattles and noise machines from trucks which backed up to the convention ports and handed the stuff around.

MIDNIGHT OIL

And many of the recipients were non-wearers of delegates' buttons, so that the parades were swelled with janissaries drawn from thither and yon to make the "Mission" larger.

"I know! I watched them do it! Today, or tomorrow, when the balloting reaches its vital stage, Willkie may or may not win the nomination."

If the voice of the people inside the hall means anything, he will!

But political machinery being what it is, he may not.

Last night no doubt the Dewey and Taft headquarters were burn- ing their lamps far into the morn- ing, cudgeling their collective brains to devise ways to lure rival minor- ity pools into their camps.

CREATIVE BEAUTY SALON

"The stop Willkie" campaign of Monday and Tuesday has turned to a "Slow Willkie down" in the trust that his boom is a temporary emotion which will wear out.

Remember what Dewey said yesterday about Willkie being like a freshly opened bottle of soda pop?

"You have to pour it before it loses its fizz," he said.

Late yesterday, while the tedious recitation of the party plank was being read to the convention, I visited Willkie headquarters on Chestnut st. Delegations, playing hookey from the boring routine of the plank, were waiting in his ante rooms. And he said:

"Up to now I've been concentrat- ing on promises of delegate votes on the second and third ballots, after they have paid off their party commitments. But now I'm going after first ballot votes."

He thought perhaps he might muster around 200 as a nucleus and creep up from there to the necessary 501 by the fourth or fifth casting.

TEMPERS WEAR THIN

The temper of the delegates may have something to do with this. They are growing steadily restless and eager to go home. Fuel to this irritation was added in the early afternoon when Chairman Joe Mar- tin rapped his hammer and de- clared, "The convention is open."

Immediately, by prearrangement, somebody in a front pew rose up and shouted, "I move adjournment until 4:45 p. m."

"It is moved," chanted Mar- tin. "No-o-o-o-o-o!" squalled the rest with a rising crescendo.

But Martin smiled beatifically. "The ages have it," he an- nounced with a thump of his gavel. "It is so ordered."

WHO WILL IT BE?

Some sat down to wait, and some went down to their hotel. But all were expectant, the fun was looking out of the clouds. Damn it, why didn't the resolutions com- mittee have it's program ready? They'd had three weeks to work on it hadn't they?

So this afternoon the nominat- ing continues—MacNider, Bridges, James, McNary, Vandenberg, etc. tag-end nonentities now.

Tomorrow night it may be over and then

Judge Morton Rites Saturday

FALL RIVER, June 27 (AP)—Funeral services will be held in the Unitarian Church Saturday for Federal Judge James Madison Mor- ton, Jr., 70, retired, a caustic critic of prohibition during the '30s, who died yesterday after a brief illness. Appointed to the Federal bench in 1912, Judge Morton frequently chided prohibition officers during the dry era and once asserted from the bench that it is about time that the prohibition authorities learned that there is a law govern- ing them as well as one governing the rest of the people.

the New Deal's reciprocal trade policies and a one-sentence plank stating what everybody knew any way—that the G. O. P. is against a third term for anyone, particu- larly a Hyde Park square mump- Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

The convention today was— as usual—lardy in getting under way—scheduled to open at 10 a. m. Chairman Martin kept the tedi- ous record intact by ignoring the clock while the delegates sat and fanned or niled in the aisles.

The galleries, as has been the case at all morning sessions, were only partly filled, the voiceless trade apparently preferring the night ses- sions.

The huge convention hall piped again got another workout as a result of Martin's declaration to start the proceedings. He was still holding protracted conferences with the various dignitaries and other workmen who always seem to have access to the sacred precincts of every convention room.

At exactly 10:45 a. m., Chairman Martin started pounding his gavel. The delegates, however, having been left waiting, took their time getting into their seats.

IN SILENT PRAYER

Finally at 10:50 Martin got things under way and the invocation was delivered by Dr. Frank Ernest Bunker, S., former superintendent of the Berkeley, Cal., city schools, now an official of the Christian Science Church in Wash- ington, D. C.

In the manner of his faith, Dr. Bunker offered no prayer himself, but called for two minutes of silent communion and then led the de- legates in the Lord's Prayer.

First to be nominated at the morning session was Martin, World War veteran and former na- tional commander of the American Legion. The nominating speech was made by Verne Marshall, who four years ago achieved national recognition when the Cedar Rap- ids, Iowa, Gazette, which he pub- lishes, won the Pulitzer prize.

Marshall praised the 50-year-old MacNider for a life devoted to the cause of Republicanism, for a heroic record overseas, for his tour of duty as an assistant secretary of war under President Coolidge, his work in the diplomatic service as United States minister to Canada during the Hoover administration, and his liberal labor policies in the milling business which he heads.

As for Marshall himself, he made the speech with the special assent of the convention, he being the only person chosen for a nominating speech who did not have credentials as a delegate or alternate to the convention.

F. D. Signs Huge Relief Bill

WASHINGTON, June 27 (AP)—President Roosevelt signed into law today a $1,157,711,357 bill to finance relief for at least eight months beginning July 1.

The measure provided a basic $175,000,000 fund for the full 12 months of the fiscal year but con- tained a provision which would per- mit the President and the WPA to use it over an eight-months period if they believed it necessary. Congress earmarked $25,000,000 of the total for national defense projects.

members of all naval vessels assembled at Casablanca had assured Gen. Nogues they would continue the war.

Gen. Nogues two days ago, declared his Moroccan troops would not yield one inch of French North African territory without a fight.

"Armistice has been signed," he said, "but to abandon to foreigners without fighting all or any part of the territory over which we exercise sovereignty or protectorate is out of the question."

NAZI BOMBERS DOWN

Three reports reached Britain as the dug in for a siege.

In the darkness before dawn,

German bombing planes staged their sixth extensive raid in nine days, shortly after War Minister Anthony Eden warned such attacks would be considered as "possibly other forms of attack will be attempted."

The air ministry reported two German bombers shot down in the raid, no serious damage done, and "only slight casualties."

A communiqué said the first bomber destroyed was a Heinkel III, shot down off the southeast coast by a Hurricane pilot after the raider was caught in "a tremendous concentration of searchlights."

The second was a Junker 88 attacked by a Spitfire over the east coast, the communiqué said. A British pilot reported seeing the invading plane explode in mid-air when his machine-gun bullets struck a bomb in its tank.

Three bombs dropped in Wales were said to have caused "insignificant" damage and no casualties.

The raids appeared centered on eastern England and Scotland, with many incendiary bombs dropped.

One man died from shock when a bomb fell within a few yards of his home in northeast Scotland.

British bombers have made new "very heavy attacks" on various military objectives in the Ruhr, aviation circles said today.

In daylight raids over Germany yesterday one plane penetrated east of the Ruhr and scored a hit on the center of an oil plant, these circles said.

Eden's warning of continued German attack was in a broadcast to the British people telling them how to behave during air raids.

EDEN'S WARNING

"The time is approaching," he said, "when the enemy, having overrun all the outlying forts of liberty, will launch his assault on the main citadel—our own land. He has already delivered bombing attacks at night."

"No doubt these attacks will be continued. Possibly other forms of attack will be attempted also. I am convinced that these can be repulsed."

In envisaging "other forms of attack," Eden warned the population against taking to the roads as refugees.

"In the case of attack," he said, "stay where you are. Refugees on roads or railways hampering those upon whom defense depends. They are the outward and visible signs that the enemy has succeeded in creating the conditions on which he counts for military success."

"Masses of refugees helped to lose the battle of France. They will not lose the battle of Britain."

EDITOR, AUTHOR DIES

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y., June 27 (AP)—Albert F. Wendrick Wilson, 56, editor and author, of Ormond Beach, Fla., died at his summer home here. He was a former professor of journalism at New York University and at one time was a member of the editorial board of the Literary Digest.

CANADA URGED TO BAN FORDS

OTTAWA, June 27 (AP)—Henry Ford's refusal to manufacture airplane motors for Great Britain has aroused demands in Parliament for a Canadian government ban on sale of Ford vehicles and seizure of the Ford Canadian plant.

But after a stormy debate in the House of Commons and Senate yesterday, Conservative Leader R. B. Hanson said in Commons: "Public opinion in Canada and I believe in the United States at this time will deal with Mr. Henry Ford. I think we can leave it there."

In Detroit, Ford said his decision against building plane engines for any purpose other than defense of the United States did not affect policies of Ford companies in the British Empire. . . . "The Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., at Windsor, Ont., and other Ford plants located in the British Empire are using their facilities to the utmost for the production of military equipment for the defense of the British Empire," Ford said, editor's note.

M. J. Coldwell, left-wing Saskatchewan member of Commons, declared in the House that "there is an opportunity" for the official custodian of enemy property to take over the Ford subsidiary in Canada. He referred to Ford as "this highly-placed saboteur."

Sen. F. E. Black, New Brunswick Conservative, suggested in the Senate that the government cancel all orders for Ford equipment and forbid sale of Ford cars in Canada.

Munitions Minister C. D. Howe, who has been in charge of purchasing army motor equipment, much of it from the Ford Motor Company of Canada, said the Ford Canadian company was "beyond criticism" in that it had co-operated completely with the government.

Myron C. Taylor Reported Improved

ROME, June 27 (INS)—Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal emissary to the Vatican, who was operated upon yesterday for gallstones, today was reported in "satisfactory condition" following a blood transfusion.

Taylor was stricken a fortnight ago at Florence, and Mrs. Taylor rushed to Italy from the United States to be at his bedside.

ace for a conference just before the Grand Council meeting.

The German and Italian ministers also had long talks with Carol and it was reported reliably they had urged the monarch, on behalf of their governments, to accede to the Soviet wishes.

Foreign military observers were informed that heavy concentrations of Red army troops, tanks and artillery were massing along the Dniester river and the former Polish-Rumanian frontier.

Rumania has nearly 1,500,000 men, under arms, many of whom have been concentrated in Bessarabia and Bucovina.

Foreign diplomatic and military observers long have expressed belief, however, that King Carol would be unwilling to attempt to oppose Russian demands by force. They held this view particularly since Germany and Italy authoritatively were reported to have conceded to Molotoff's demands as the price of Russia's pressure to keep Turkey out of the side of Allies and Soviet economic aid to the axis powers.

German sources in Berlin asserted today that the Reich is disinterested in Soviet Russia's demands on Rumania.

A similar expression was forthcoming when Russia recently marched into Lithuania, Estonia and Latvia to "implement" further her mutual assistance pacts with the little Baltic states on Germany's eastern flank.—Editor's Note.

Reds to Rule Over All Ukrain Populations

Bessarabia, which was Russian before the World War settlement, and Bucovina, a former province of Austria-Hungary, both have large Ukrainian populations, and the Berlin radio reported Russia's demands were for "all Rumanian territories chiefly inhabited by Ukrainians." Although Moscow apparently insists Bessarabia belongs to this category, the Encyclopedia Britannica puts its Ukrainian population at only 20 per cent.

The Ukrainian homeland, with a population of about 32,000,000, is one of the component republics of the Russian Soviet union. With possession of Bessarabia and Bucovina Russia with have united virtually all Ukrainian territory except the Carpatho-Ukraine, a small portion of the now dismembered Czechoslovak republic.

LARGE RUMANIAN AREA

After the break-up of Czechoslovakia last year there were many reports of a pan-Ukrainian movement under German encouragement designed to draw all Ukrainians, including those of Russia, into the Nazi orbit.

Bessarabia, 17,146 square miles, with a population in 1937 of 3,310,654, now is the third largest of Rumanian provinces, both in area and population. It lies in the northeast corner of Rumania, separated by the Dniester river from Soviet Russia's rich Ukraine.

Until 1918, most of Bessarabia had been held by Russia for more than a century.

Bessarabia is mainly agricultural, corn and wheat being chief crops.

Bucovina is a small province at the northernmost point of Rumania, lying at the junction of what were the Polish, Czechoslovak borders on Rumania. It also adjoins Bessarabia.

Bucovina's population in 1937 was 910,997. The small province was a crown land of Austria until 1918. On the collapse of Austria-Hungary in 1918, representatives of the Rumanian met at Cernowitz and proclaimed an assembly which voted the union of the province with Rumania. Rumanian troops entered the section on Nov. 11, 1918.

Constanta, 119 miles southeast of Bucharest by air, was founded by the Roman emperor, Constantine the Great. Severely damaged in the World War, it recovered rapidly and is Rumania's chief outlet to the Black Sea. Its population in 1930 was 54,258.

Tulcea is on the right bank of the Danube River 42 miles from its mouth at Sulina. Its population in 1930 was 20,108.

NAZI ARMY OCCUPYING FRANCE

BERLIN, June 27 (AP)—German troops have begun the occupation of a section of France east of Bordeaux, as provided for in the Franco-German armistice treaty, the German high command announced today.

The daily communiqué reported that "attacks of weak enemy naval forces on the northern coast of France" were repulsed on the night of June 21-22.

London announced yesterday that British naval and military forces aided by planes had raided several points on the German-occupied coastline and gained valuable information and killed some Germans—Editor's note.

The communiqué said German planes last night "again successfully bombed and set ablaze" aircraft and buildings of the airplane industry in England."

CLAIM SHIPS SUNK

One German submarine has reported the sinking of 35,000 tons of enemy shipping, the communiqué said.

Press, radio and authorized spokesmen charged the British with "bombing anti-aircraft," killing civilians and damaging non-military objects.

Caustic comment on British war leadership increased in volume.

The press asserted British raiders sought out communities which lacked defenses because they are not military objectives.

The German shift wave news commentator declared last night England is making "well-calculated attempts to get in touch with the axis powers," presumably for peace negotiations.

Authoritative sources in London described this broadcast as "positive rubbish and absolute rot" and stated no such move has been, or will be, contemplated.—Editor's note.

Reports from German-occupied Norway stated reconstruction in the Narvik area port region had progressed so light trains could use the railroad line to the Swedish border over which ore from Swedish mines formerly was transported.

Officers Quell Mutiny in Port

NORFOLK, Va., June 27 (INS)—An alleged Communist plot to murder the official personnel of the Estonian freighter Kotkas and take over the ship was foiled early today by fiercely-battling officers of the vessel.

Led by a giant Russian known only as Ransall, five firemen who had boasted, since Russia absorbed Estonia, that "all on the ship are of equal rank," cut off all the ship's lights and then launched an attack on the Kotkas' officers. The mutineers also sought to attack two women members of the crew.

The second officer of the Kotkas drew his revolver and blazed away at the mutineers. Ransall was shot down, a bullet through one leg. When police arrived, the wounded Ransall and his four companions, all badly battered, were huddled amidships in sheet surrender.

Canada to Boost Plane Production

LONDON, June 27 (AP)—Canada's production of warplanes will be 1024 this year and 1583 in 1941, an authoritative source disclosed today.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By HARRIET PARSONS

Pinch-Hitting for Louella O. Parsons, Who Is on Vacation

HOLLYWOOD, June 27—Up until a few days ago Producer Harry Joe Brown and Director Irving Cummings were still clinging to the hope that Cesar Romero would be well enough to go into "Down Argentine Way." But when it became apparent that Cesar would be ill for some time yet there was a hot and heavy search for an actor to replace him.

Result of all the tests is the amazing choice of Russian Leonid Kinsky to play the Argentine Gigolo who escorts Betty Grable and Charlotte Greenwood. Seems Kinsky gave the role a humorous touch, which went over big in his test. He's played countless character and comedy bits, but this is his best break to date.

There was considerable comment about Rita Johnson's gracious, womanly performance as Mrs. Edison in "Edison the Man." I have heard it compared to Greer Garson's unforgettable Mrs. Chips in any case, Rita's studio, M-G-M, is very pleased with her. Her contract has just been taken up and she will be given the female lead in the James Hilton story, "Rage in Heaven."

DEWEY ROOTERS ROOT NOMINATION

It's a Dew, Dew, Dewey Day as the District-Attorney's Stock Booms

Murrah... For Thomas E. Dewey—Republican delegates from all over the nation swing over to the Dewey bandwagon and here, on the convention floor, pretty Miss Helen Hayes is carried on delegates' shoulders. She joins in with the screaming of "Dewey for President." Fists flew later when Willkie's name was called and parade of state standards began.

A Dewey Demonstration—Dewey followers and supporting delegates rise and parade around floor of convention hall after the New York district attorney had been nominated. John Lord O'Brian, Buffalo, N. Y., lawyer, told Republicans that the young prosecutor could be depended on "to keep us out of war."

G.O.P. PLEDGES PEACE, PREPAREDNESS

Nominations Enliven Convention; Willkie Still Strong Factor

Hyde Sets Plank

Chinfest

—As the convention booms all around them, Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. (left) chats with Rep. Hamilton Sun of New York... possibly discussing their respective candidate's chances.

Fair Booser—Rooting for Gov. Penn., Arthur James of Harrisburg, Pa., crosses in military outfit and cheers loudly. James was one of the breakers in the coal mines.

G. O. P. Plank—Before a cheering audience, Herbert K. Hyde of Oklahoma, chairman of the resolutions committee, gives G. O. P. convention its 29-plank platform, pledging preparedness and peace.

High Up

—Cameras perch high up in rafters of G. O. P. convention hall in Philadelphia, and takes this unusual photo. At the time, Ex-President Herbert Hoover was speaking.

Secrets

—Col. Theodore Roosevelt of New York chats with Congressman Joe Martin of Massachusetts, permanent chairman of the G. O. P. convention. Martin was a "dark horse" in nomination balloting.

HENRY FORD'S factories in the United States will make airplanes only for the defense of the United States.

He has made that adequately clear to the government, which did not seem to understand what he said in the first place, or expected him to change his mind.

We certainly hope the government will not cut off its own nose by telling Mr. Ford that because he will not make planes or plane motors for Great Britain he will not be allowed to make them for the United States.

This nation needs Mr. Ford and his scientific genius and his great productive capacity. We can imagine no more competent team for pulling this country out of the hole of inadequate defense than that which appeared to be in harness together—Henry Ford and William S. Knudsen.

Mr. Ford is a great idealist as well as a great industrialist, and he has always hated war, and he has always had the courage of his convictions. Because he hates war he will not make Rolls Royce plane motors for Great Britain in his plants in this country, although the Ford Motor Company of Canada is working in full co-operation with the British government.

Because he will not make Rolls Royce motors for Britain in his Detroit plant, our government has cancelled negotiations with him for production of this motor for our country.

Now, this may not be as serious as it sounds. We hope not. It is quite likely that Britain made plans for the motor available to our government under an agreement that a certain percentage of production would be for Britain's urgent needs. Of course, production efficiency would require a centralized output for both countries and if that agreement is in force it is perfectly logical for the government to place the contract elsewhere than with Mr. Ford.

HENRY FORD

Mr. Ford said at the very outset that he could and would turn out 1000 planes daily and that he would do it for DEFENSE only. Perhaps those who believe that Britain is our first line of defense expected this would include production for Britain. In any event, some considerable time appears to have been wasted in the unsuccessful effort to make Mr. Ford change his mind.

Britain is in dire need of planes and it is apparently the will of this country's majority that we assist her in obtaining them. Mr. Ford prefers to concentrate his energies on this nation's defense problem. So Britain will get her planes from another source in this country.

But we still want planes from Mr. Ford.

COMMON SENSE SAYS and national security demands that some contract to manufacture planes be speedily restored to Henry Ford.

He is a good American, properly concerned with keeping his country safe, and he should have the opportunity to contribute what everybody knows he can contribute.

When the United States made the mistake of entering the World War twenty-three years ago, Mr. Ford put his resources at the disposal of the government.

His great plants were converted to war work, manufacturing munitions, ambulances and whippet tanks; huge shipyards were built for the construction of "Eagle boat" submarine chasers; an immense hospital was turned over to the government for the care of wounded soldiers, and Mr. Ford personally subscribed to millions of dollars worth of Liberty Bonds.

"I want peace," he said, "but I will fight like the devil to get it. I hate war so much I am willing to enter this one in the hope it will be the last."

Since that time the Ford Motor Company's resources have increased tremendously in variety and magnitude.

Its factories in Detroit and Baton Rouge are Twentieth Century marvels.

Its drop forge plant, vitally important in the mass production of aircraft, is the greatest in the world.

Its mining and rubber properties are almost an empire in themselves.

And, furthermore, its record effectively answers those who doubt that planes can be made in large volumes on short notice.

Only 13 years ago, after having manufactured 15,000,000 "Model T" cars, Mr. Ford suspended operations for several weeks, quietly spent one hundred million dollars, and then turned out new, better and more practical automobiles at the breath-taking rate of SIX THOUSAND A DAY.

On The Side

WOMEN, fighting in defense of their children, husbands, sweethearts, homes and things they believe in are better battlers than men. Their capacity for sacrifice and endurance in times of stress are greater. Nature has seen to that. It has been truly said:

*When greater perils men environ,
The women show a front of iron;
And, gentle in their manner, they Do bold things in a quiet way.*

JOAN CRAWFORD, intense cinema performer, is spending the summer in a Beekman Place apartment on the East Side of Manhattan. I told her, "I had an uncle who owned a drug store near Beekman Place," and she said, "How interesting?" Do you think she was being sarcastic? Well, anyway, she didn't say: "And, so what?" . . . George Hines, now a film theater manager, was once a circus side-show boss. Mr. Hines originated the ballyhoo: "Step this way! Here's Bosco, the Wild Man! He eats 'em alive!" . . . Gilda Gray, who was the leading exponent of that dance known as "The Shimmy," came from Milwaukee. She is one of the 376 girls who have been reported engaged to Abe Lyman, the bandmaster. Mr. Lyman has had more engagement rings returned to him than any 12 men in the world. . . . Ethel Flaherty, racehorse trainer and owner, has a stable of two thoroughbreds. The Climbers. 3. Jealousy. . . . Church services of 15 minutes on the lawn of the church would be welcomed by most churchgoers. . . . MY DAY

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 27—Miss Dorothy Thompson is a fellow columnist for whom I have the greatest respect and admiration as a writer as well as a person.

We do not always see eye to eye on all subjects, but today I want to quote a few words from her column which I hope will sink deeply into the minds of Republicans and Democrats, and people in general all over this country.

The part of her column explaining an American who reads: "He will work and fight when democracy means work, and bread and human dignity and brotherhood. He will work and fight to make this country the most beautiful home for men that the sun ever shone upon."

Nothing truer than this was ever written. I have wanted to say something just like it for a long time. That is why I believe that in spite of much that is being said today, we must continue along the lines which will make life more worth living for the average man.

EVEN THOUGH we arm, even though it costs all of us something to change our conception of personal liberty—which to many has meant the right to unlimited material profits—still we must have more housing, better health services and jobs that ensure a decent livelihood to every family.

I do not claim that anyone has found the perfect solution, or the things that have been done cannot be improved, but I know we must keep on trying. I feel deeply that we must not slacken our efforts and whatever we do must be done with the ultimate objectives always before us.

I AM much interested in some of the news reports which state that Mr. Gene Tunney is leading some two hundred young people to the convention of the American Youth Congress in Geneva, Wisconsin.

I have only one hope, and that is that this opposition will show real wisdom in being sure that their delegates have proper credentials and meet the rules for representation on the floor of the congress.

In this way they can avoid the disappointment in their efforts to present their point of view.

Why does not Mr. Tunney publish in the papers, since he seems to be able to obtain publicity, these rules and the manner in which these two hundred delegates will be chosen?

All of this small group of vocal young people who are for and against many different ideas, will be watched by both sympathetic and unsympathetic people during their annual convention, and will be given, I imagine, a good deal of publicity.

Therefore, it behooves all of them to behave with restraint and fairness, to have the wisdom to find out what the necessary requirements are, and to live up to them on every occasion.

LEWIS APPEARS IN "AH, WILDERNESS!"

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, June 27—Sinclair Lewis made his debut in "Ah, Wilderness!" this week in the Maplewood, N. J., summer theater. The program-note reports that Lewis once rejected the Nobel Prize. "Such a mistake," a friend lamented. "Isn't that terrible?" . . . "Oh, no," Lewis stated. "It would have been terrible if I never had been offered that prize." . . . In that show, Dickie Van Patten, 10 years old, portrays the role of "Tommy." Dickie is a senior member of Equity, while Lewis holds a Junior member's card. "Dickie," Lewis asked him, "wasn't 'On Borrowed Time' your first play?" . . . "Oh, no," the boy assured the 55-year-old newcomer to the stage. "It was my eighth."

JIMMY DURANTE, at the Stork Club, told of his personal appearance tour through England, where the critics were kind to him—so kind that, on the eve of his departure, Durante tendered a huge dinner-party for all of them . . . The next week, riding on a train from France to Italy, Durante picked up an Italian paper, and scanned it. He can't read Italian—but noticed that "Durante" appeared in almost every column. He felt that this was due to the advance notices sent by the appreciative British newspaperman, clipped 75 of these columns, and put them into his scrapbook. But then, in the washroom, he saw a sign in which the word "Durante" appeared. He saw that word also in signs on Roman establishments being reconstructed. Only then did he learn that "Durante," in Italian, did not refer to a famed Broadway comic—but that it meant "during."

LAURENCE OLIVIER and Vivien Leigh, who were wavering between returning to England or remaining here—inasmuch as Duff Cooper had canceled their summons to London—are leaving for California . . . Saturday night, when The Revuers appeared on the full-hour television program, the unbilled stranger who turned the pages for the accompanist was Aaron Copeland, the noted American composer.

M. W. Fodor, the veteran correspondent, returned to America last week-end, and went to the home of John Gunther—one of the only two people he knows in N. Y. There he found a surprise—Mrs. Fodor, whom he last saw in London, months ago.

MORTIMER ADLER, author of "How to Read a Book," participated in a round-table conference with H. V. Kaltenborn and Clifton Fadiman . . . Adler and Fadiman disagreed with Kaltenborn, whose rage kept mounting, and who finally compared the current hostilities to the Thirty Years War, which finally ended in 1648 when the Peace of Westphalia gave Alsace to France . . . "That was 300 years ago," said Kaltenborn, "and how is the warfare different?" . . . "But then," Fadiman replied, "the world didn't have you reporting it."

VIVIEN LEIGH

BOSTON After DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

UNTIL THE IMMINENT VISIT OF BOB HOPE and his valiant record-breaking troupe began to be publicized hereabouts, few but his friends and family knew that Jerry Colonna, the inspirational comedian, was a Boston boy . . . Comes another surprise in the identification of the young and handsome band leader at the Ritz Carlton Roof as the Ben Cutler who won his "Y" at Yale, after matriculating in the academy of his home-town, Andover . . . Maestro Cutler captivated the "regulars" at the Ritz at last night's opening performance.

RANKING WITH THE FIRST-FLIGHT "society bandsmen," a classification which is difficult to define but which holds Emil Coleman, Ruby Newman, Jack and Harry Marshall and possibly Eddie Duchin, Ben Cutler of Andover, Mass., has been a tremendous favorite at the Rainbow Room in New York . . . When he spurned the Roof's public address system at his premiere performance, and revealed a pair of powerful pipes sufficient to be audible at the neighboring Hotel Statler, Maestro Cutler added to his appeal . . . Not since the Ritz became a summer hang-out his visiting vocalist managed to get along without the amplifying microphone.

ANOTHER SURPRISE WAS THE DISCOVERY that a famous Boston decorator who shuns publicity, has been heckling three shifts of workmen into truly special endeavors this week at the Coconut Grove, in the rather labyrinth known as the Melody Lounge . . . No longer will the popular Melody Lounge, incidentally, be a labyrinth . . . The room has been extended to triple its former size . . . Replacing the black velvet background is a blue—heavenly blue . . . The same shade of carpeting, and zebra-striped furnishings have been used to brighten the atmosphere—and make it possible to find one's way around the place . . . And the whole environment will be in tropical decor and spirit . . . One feature that will distinguish the converted Melody Lounge from other "tropical rooms" will be that the drink known as The Zombie POSITIVELY WILL NOT be served.

A HUGE TURNTABLE will occupy dead center of the new Melody Lounge, and surrounding it will be a circular bar . . . The transformation that has been worked in the place since Sunday morning is semi-miraculous . . . And the premiere has been set for Friday night . . . Herb Lewis will be featured in the Lounge, and another set or two will divide the burden of uninterrupted entertainment with the cowboy-singer . . . At the Grove last night, a sleuth familiar with the so-called "heavy industries" might have detected a deal from the mere presence of a couple of rival "asbestos kings" at play . . . One was Jack Epstein, who owns a segment of the industry with a Cambridge headquarters . . . Another was Loren Bain, of Canada and the United States.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Sally Clark McLanahan is a three-toned platinum, page-boy blonde this season . . . Rudy Vallee, who will disavow any intention to boss the national musicians' union when he arrives in town Friday, is coming to Boston to admire the newly-born daughter of his friends, the Harry Pauls . . . The male Paul is Irving Berlin's contact man in Boston . . . He also toots the public relations trumpet, (but unofficially,) for Mr. Vallee, a schoolmate and intimate friend . . . As Mr. Berlin's new hit show (and song) is named "Louisiana"

DISNEY, BENCHLEY IN FILM DEAL

Walt Disney

Push-Button for Lemila O. Parsons Who Is on Vacation

HOLLYWOOD, June 27—Walt Disney and Bob Benchley have been in excited conference over an idea for a full-length technicolor feature combining live action and animation. The new Disney plant, which is the pride of Walt's life, would serve as a setting and Benchley would portray a befuddled new employee wandering from department to department. In other words Benchley would serve as a comic excuse for showing the fascinating inner workings of the most elaborate and up-to-date cartoon studio in the world.

In addition to the live action sequences in which Benchley—and the public—find out how cartoons are made there will be preview flashes of scenes from forthcoming Disney gems.

than that was room to accommodate. Ty Power practically got mobbed, Grace Allen, Simone Simon, and Lela Lane did yeoman work collecting contributions.

PENNY SINGLETON'S blonde personality drew chuckles when she modelled in the fashion show: Bob Erastio lunches in the Paramount commissary with his present beau, Kay Craig, and then goes back to the "Mous Over Furm" set to make movie love to his ex-flame, Dottie Lamour.

THE DON AMECHE offspring is due in two weeks. Don, who has three heirs, is hoping for an heirless but his studio, TCF, is probably rooting for "Four Sons"; Gable and Lombard, Bill Powell and bride, Diane Lewis, Kay Kyser and Ginny Simms, Eugene Pallette and Irishers Jim Cagney and George Murphy were all at the ball park yesterday eve rooting for the Hollywood Stars.

ALEC TEMPLETON, whose triumph over blindness is an object lesson to all, writes a friend that he's taking dancing lessons at the Arthur Murray studio in Chicago; Walter Pidgeon's back from a Catalina jaunt looking veddy tan and handsome; after finishing his evening's stint at Earl Carroll's Bert Wheeler took three of the Carroll beauts in tow and went over to the La Cunga for a busman's holiday.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

ALL THE WORLD has acclaimed Neville Draper as America's finest actor and singer, yet few knew what mental torture he suffered. He had a great fear, the fear of war. With the world in its present critical condition, the fear became an obsession. He was unable to eat or sleep. Whenever he closed his eyes to find peace, pictures of death, destruction and suffering flashed in his mind. He could see himself writhing in the mud with a bullet buried in his body; running in the night with bombs bursting over his head; an enemy bayonet finding its way into his interior; lying helpless calling feebly for help, unnoticed. He would wake in a cold sweat, trembling.

TO MAKE matters worse he overheard men talking about "the letter." The letter whose envelope bore the mark, "United States Army," calling them in to be fitted for a uniform.

And now each day he would wait—wait for that letter! The fatal day came! He looked fearfully through his letters as he did every day and there it was—"UNITED STATES ARMY." His eyes watered; beads of perspiration rolled from his face; all the horror, dread and fear he had ever known crashed into his heart. He gasped, closed his eyes and fell to the floor.

ALL THE PAPERS carried the story of Neville Draper's sudden death. They said it was heart attack, but—if he had only opened that letter he would have read:

"Dear Sir:

"We would like you to head our program in the yearly entertainment at the House of Disabled War Veterans."

The writer of this story, Peter J. Mamakos of Newbury street, Somerville, receives five dollars.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

WE MAY HAVE been dumb in the past about Germany's Fifth Column but we're certainly making up for lost time now. Overnight we've gone blood-bound, rolling a suspicious eye at any unidentified stranger, ready to bay him to his subversive lair. Which is fine and dandy, and the sooner we mop up these subsidized ancoopers the better for all of us.

But let's not kid ourselves that the Fifth Column is our main menace. It isn't. We have an outfit right here in the good, old U. S. A. which has it all over Herr Hitler's imported meaneas when it comes to dispensing discouragement and general demoralization.

MEANING WHAT? Meaning that our own GROUCH COLUMB of chronic glooms is as poisonous to American morale as any invasion of enemy aliens could possibly be. And maybe more so!

No need to describe these lads and lassies; they're as ubiquitous and as obnoxious as the common wood tick, with an identical line of attack—i. e. constant belittling.

According to them, nothing's ever right with the U. S. A., no where, no how. Particularly now.

We have no adequate defense program, and we wouldn't know what to do with it if we had.

In short, we're just a bunch of blabbing Big Mouths who couldn't withstand a blitzkrieg of custard pies, and it's high time someone came along and calmed our bluffs.

ALL of which may contain several grains of truth. Far be it from me to protest our perfection . . . or deny that we need a swift kick on our collective shin. But it's one thing to admit our weaknesses and get busy doing a job on them . . . and quite another to make a steady racket of crepe hanging.

And to my notion, the people who do the latter are as traitorous as the most vicious enemy spies.

A HONEYMOON trip to the West Coast is in store for Sarah Goddard Bradlee of Milton, and Charles Robert Morris, member of the English Department of Milton Academy, who are being married this afternoon in First Parish Church, Milton...

The wedding is a double celebration for it marks the first anniversary of the bride's sister, Susan, who was married to A. Howard Abell, one of Mr. Morris' associates at Milton Academy, a year ago today...

Mrs. Abell is serving as matron of honor at the four o'clock ceremony which Rev. Vivian T. Pomeroy is performing... Elizabeth L. Hamilton of Milton, is maid of honor and the bridesmaid group includes Elizabeth M. Johnson, Jane S. Megrew, Emily Walton, all of Milton, and Mary Wright of Hingham...

Given in marriage by her father, Edward C. Bradlee, the bride is wearing a white satin gown with a flared skirt and train, short puffed sleeves and a round yoke of Brussels rose point lace... Her tulle veil is caught to a lace headress with clusters of orange blossoms, and she is carrying lilies of the valley and gardenias...

THE HONOR ATTENDANTS' gowns of Vienna blue mouseline de soie are made with sweetheart necklines, full tucked skirts and short sleeves... White straw hats trimmed with blue ribbons and bouquets of white and yellow daisies, complete their outfits... The bridesmaids' costumes are the same in jaunty yellow... Boosts Gloucester Celebration

NATALIE HAYS HAMMOND, whose hobbies run the gamut of interests from painting in her private studio overlooking Gloucester harbor, to entertaining a houseful of celebrities (Garbo, included), has a new avocation, and a very serious one...

She is sort of a one-woman Chamber of Commerce, promoting all sorts of activities to make her home town of Gloucester better known and a better place in which to live...

It is largely her initiative and backing which have brought about plans for the mammoth Port of Gloucester celebration, Aug. 14 and 15—two full days of sports, boat races, civic programs and social festivities... Recently she was elected chairman of the Civic Patrol (the first in the U. S. A., incidentally) a defense organization which is so well mapped out that the famous old fishing port could become a fortress in itself overnight, in case of invasion...

Aside from these time and thought consuming jobs, she was yesterday unanimously elected chairman of the disaster relief committee of local Red Cross chapter...

BLONDIE

JULIE WELLS' eyes held a brilliant glitter of happiness as she brought the young man into the tent.

"Oh, Miss Standish!" she cried. "I know you're so rushed—looking after the whole bazaar—but I do want you to meet Ben Creighton."

Some bright miracle had happened to Julie Wells, and the wonder of it sang in the commonplace introduction. "Miss Standish is Mrs. Dalzell's secretary," Julie added.

Amy Standish was also 50 and a spinster, and the stare she turned upon Ben Creighton was duly auspicious.

He stood up under it all right; he seemed an entirely decent, sober young man. It would have been a pity otherwise. Julie was such a fine, clear, guileless girl, so defenseless against the hint the wrong kind of young men could have inflicted.

"Sit down, both of you. Tell me all about it. You're after something, or you wouldn't trouble your heads about an old woman like me," said Amy Standish. But she smiled as she poured their tea. "Lemon, Mr. Creighton? Julie?"

Julie didn't hear. Almost painfully, she watched Vivian Martin coming across the tent toward their table. Vivian was a blonde vision in ruffled organdy, carrying an insouciantly gay and absurdly useless parasol. She spoke sweetly. "Two lumps, Amy." And then, affecting surprise, "Oh, hello, you two!"

"Hello," said Julie. She tried to make it sound cordial. Vivian was Mrs. Dalzell's pet niece—and Mrs. Dalzell sponsored the bazaar every year for the benefit of a children's summer camp. Julie Wells worked at the camp as senior counselor. She knew Vivian only slightly, but she had heard things, and the remembrance of them made her abruptly doubtful now.

Amy Standish was thinking the same thought, exactly. She could not ignore Vivian Martin, but she managed an exclusive smile for Julie. "You were saying?" she asked.

Julie said, "I started to tell you, Ben's from the University, and he—"

"A professor!" exclaimed Vivian. She opened her blue eyes at Creighton. "At your age? Why, that's marvelous!" Julie's heart bumped downward.

FATAL CHARM

"Well, not quite a professor," Creighton's grey glance dwelt on the blonde vision. "Only an in-young men a year or so to recover, after she quit amusing herself with them. Some men would never be quite the same again.

As a little girl, Julie decided bitterly, Vivian must have been the kind of brat who took one bite out of every apple on the plate. And Ben was too sensitive not to be marked forever by those cruel, pretty teeth.

"MUMSEY'S PET"

Suddenly she saw Amy Standish looking at her with pity. Julie flushed hotly and hurried out into the sunshine.

Miss Standish shook her head. It in each other, scarcely noticed when she returned.

Julie came in. "The reporter got away, but look who I found wandering around." She was smiling.

The little golden-haired girl clung to Julie's hand, her starched sunbonnet not much higher than Julie's knee.

"Patty!" cried Vivian happily. "Mumsey's pet!" She opened her arms.

Oh, Julie, you're a fool if you think this'll do you any good, thought Amy Standish. Don't you know that baby's her trump ace? She plays Patty at them when everything else fails.

Vivian told Creighton. "It's mumsey's fault; she wanted to show Patty the puppets," and gathered the child to her white ruffled shoulder. "Isn't she sweet?"

They made a pretty picture. Madonnaish. Men found it irresistible.

"Look at them, Ben," Julie said. "Aren't their eyes exactly alike?" Amy Standish sent the girl a warning glare. Didn't she know that pretty young widows have a special charm of their own? And exquisite baby daughters, too?

"Hardly," Creighton told Vivian. "Yours are much bluer."

"And Patty's are myopic," said

"I don't like old glatheth!" Patty declared.

"Glatheth!" Vivian fondly imitated the babyish lisp; men also were overcome by this. "Yes, pet, you may have mumsey's cookie. In your other hand, precious."

As if speech defects, lispings, didn't develop from making naturally left-handed children use the other one... Amy Standish broiled, but she couldn't tell Julie's young man that Vivian was an utterly self-centered wretch who satively bothered her head over little Patty except to impress some man.

She could think it, though, while Vivian prattled on about raising Patty, the books she had to read, the lectures she went to. Oh, the child seemed so beautifully to focus admiration on the other!

(CREIGHTON DECLINES)

"There!" Vivian finished, laughing softly. "You've found me out! I'm really an ancient widow, old enough to have this practically grown-up young lady on my hands." Her eyes danced. "It's no use pretending we're sisters, is it?"

"It'll be a good many years before you need to pretend anything of the sort," said Creighton gravely.

Vivian must have known she made her impression; she declared she had to run now. "You won't forget my little party Thursday night?" she asked Creighton. "You are coming, aren't you?"

For just a moment, then, Julie caught her breath; pinched her lips nervously.

Creighton said, "I'm afraid we've engaged Thursday." His glance included Julie.

"You're both invited, of course," Vivian included Julie hastily.

Creighton said, "I'm afraid we've made other plans."

Vivian looked startled. Actually, she got almost to the tent's door way before she remembered—had to come back and take Patty's hand. Her retreat after that wasn't too dignified.

Creighton stared after the widow. "She's incredible," he announced. "Good Lord, she belongs in a case study."

Julie Wells sat down, smiled across the table at Miss Standish. "Now for what we wanted," she said briskly, but the brightness of feminine triumph sparkled in her eyes. Vivian had held all the weapons, but there'd been one that could be turned against the dangerous widow.

"We'd like for you to arrange an appointment for Ben with Mrs. Dalzell. He hopes to do clinical research at the camp this summer. You see, he teaches child psychology at the University, and he's particularly interested in neglected children and selfish parents."

structor on a foundation fellowship.

You couldn't blame him for watching her, fascinated. Men always did, when Vivian wanted them to. She was murmuring about the difficulty of winning fellowships nowadays; but it wasn't anything she said. It was just—Vivian.

Across the table, Amy Standish sat in helpless indignation. Much she cares whether he's a professor or the college janitor, thought Amy bitterly. He wears pants, and that's all she's interested in. It was the conquest Vivian wanted, and it had been the same even while Floyd Martin lived. Marriage hadn't stopped her from taking men away from other women, perhaps just to show them she could do it. As a widow—well, Amy's spinster mind wondered what made widows so dangerously fascinating to the male...

"Oh, Miss Wells!" Vivian looked up suddenly. "I almost forgot. A reporter in the house was asking for you—some publicity about the camp, I suppose. He seemed to think he couldn't wait much longer."

Julie, said, her dry voice aching in her throat: "Thank you, I'll go." She knew perfectly well there wasn't any reporter.

"I'll bow Mr. Creighton until you come back," Vivian volunteered. "Amy, the Leightons just came in. Be a dear and get them a table, won't you?"

Leaving, Julie paused under the tent's awning, and looked back. Her dark young eyes looked bruised, panicky. She knew this was the most terribly important moment in her life. It sometimes took Vivian's

CHARLES MARTIN AND WILLIAM WEEMS
Boys Study Radio Communications on Island

TRAINING IS BEGUN BY STUDENT SAILORS

The first contingent, 50 strong, of an expected 700 student sailors was hard at work on Gallipoli island, down the harbor, today, studying at the Maritime Service school to become trained seamen for Uncle Sam.

Of average ages, between 13 and 22, the boys have been hand-picked from volunteers in the Civilian Conservation Corps. They come from all parts of the country and many of them saw salt water for the first time when they volunteered to enter training under the direction of the Maritime Commission.

ENTER SERVICE

Civil Guard commissioned officers, headed by Lieut. K. Stoughton Davis, are in charge of their training and experienced chief petty officers from the same branch of the national service head the enlisted personnel.

The boys will take courses in radio operation, signals and other technical branches of "sailing the seven seas."

The courses of instruction are expected to continue for from six to eight months, at the end of which time the boys will be prepared to enter the merchant service, or the Navy as trained personnel.

This shortage of trained men in both the naval and merchant marine branches brought about the birth of the Maritime Service school and this first batch of students arrived at the island as barracks, lecture halls and instruction material were hardly begun.

That is some indication of the haste with which the Maritime Commission is trying to fill the rank of skilled seamen. At present the boys and the maintenance staff of 100 are sleeping on army cots. Double-decked bunks are on the way.

The barracks, of World War I vintage, are being fitted out to house the expected 700 students.

New galleys, new dining halls, shower rooms, a moving picture hall, all are being built into the hollow shells of barracks which for many years featured the Boston quarantine island.

A radio school is being erected.

There is a large recreation field and plans for a baseball diamond are going ahead. Speed is the watchword of Lieut. Davis and his staff, and ambition is the watchword of the boys. As one officer said to them:

"It is up to yourselves. We'll give you the instruction. Now let's see what you're going to make of it."

NO TO-NIC

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

JACK DEMPSEY is rubbing some of the rust off "Iron Mike," his famous left hook, as he prepares at the age of 45 for a ten-round bout with Cowboy Luttrell, a wrestler, at Atlanta, Ga. on July 1.

JACK DEMPSEY

I never heard of Luttrell. Maybe he can fight, and then again he may not be able to toss punches fast enough to keep himself warm.

At the age of 45 Dempsey could not hope to beat a third rate heavyweight boxer, but against a wrestler who does not know a great deal about the art of self defense it should be a different story. I am willing to wager one or more Summer hats that Dempsey still packs enough thunder in his left duke to beat Luttrell or any other ordinary wrestler.

If Dempsey were battling Steve Casey or youthful Dan O'Mahony, I would take him aside and advise him to call off the match. I would not like to see the old Manassa Mauler meet with serious injury.

Dempsey is still able to cut loose with a few healthy punches. If the former champion hits his target, something will happen.

Former champions can punch when they are unable to move around a ring. The last asset a boxer loses is his ability to hit.

Ball players are the same. Great hitters like Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth could still paste the little white agate a mile when they were unable to run to first base.

Dempsey Never Injured His Hands

DEMPSEY HAD the best pair of hands of any boxer I ever saw.

"Look at my dukes, Mr. Boston," Dempsey said to me one day at his training camp at Saratoga Springs. "My hands are like square blocks, and I never hurt them no matter where my punches land. I like to put as much tape around my hands as possible, and then I don't even worry if I belt my opponent on top of his head."

Powerful hands are a necessary asset for a good fighter.

Gene Tunney knew this when he mapped out the campaign that ended with his winning the heavyweight championship of the world from Dempsey.

I used to meet Gene running around the course at the Bay Shore Golf Club at Miami, Fla. In his hands, he held two small rubber balls that he kept pressing as he ran. This exercise built up the strength in Tunney's hands.

Jack Sharkey originally started his ring career with bad hands. Sharkey used to hit with such power that he would push the small bones in his hands out of position.

I saw Sharkey knock out Homer Smith at Syracuse after he had broken both hands.

By careful study of boxing Sharkey mastered the art of hitting with the least possible risk to his hands. Sharkey retained enough power in his hands to almost knock out Dempsey, and to stop fighters like Jim Maloney and Tommy Loughran.

Dempsey Rebuilding His Ring Fortune

DEMPSEY EARNED more money than any heavyweight, but much of his fortune was lost in poor investments.

During the past six years, Dempsey has been rebuilding his lost fortune. By refereeing, giving an occasional exhibition, and by helping to direct his restaurants in New York and the Dempsey-Vanderbilt hotel at Miami Beach the former champion has earned considerable money.

"When I was married to Estelle Taylor," Dempsey once told me, "we often spent as much as $5000 for a single party at our Beverly Hills home."

Dempsey has always been one of the softest touchers in sports. Last Christmas Jack went to Manila to referee the Garcia-Lee bout for $7500.

"I saved $10,000 in touches that I would have had to go for if I had remained around New York over the holidays," said Dempsey on his return from the Philippines. "I was obliged to give up considerable work in the United States to make the trip to Manila, but in the end I saved money."

When Dempsey owned the Hotel Barbara in Los Angeles, most of the guests were friends of Jack and would frequently forget to visit the cashier after they checked out. One night Dempsey was in Los Angeles, and decided to stop at his own hotel.

"I'm sorry, Jack, but I haven't got a vacant room," said the clerk apologetically. "All the rooms are filled with your friends."

"Okay, partner," replied Dempsey as he chuckled. "I'll step around to the Ambassador."

Max Waxman has been managing Dempsey's business affairs in recent years.

"My toughest job," Waxman told me in Florida last winter, "is to keep Dempsey from turning over big chunks of his money to his fair weather friends."

SOX REST TODAY

Play Senators Here Tomorrow

Still rubbing the sleepy-winkles out of their eyes, the Red Sox detrained at Huntington ave. this morning after a poor road trip prepared to step up action here, using their young home team at Fenway Park.

"NICE WORK, JACKIE." Casey Stengel, all smiles since his Bees whipped the Cards twice last Sunday, congratulates Jackie Sullivan, son of Bees pitcher, on his catching ability. Jackie works out at Hive every day Bees are home, and is envy of every kid in Allston.

Piechota, Strincevich Join B's, Tobin Flies to West Coast Doctor

With the complete series against the pace-setting Cincinnati Reds washed out by three straight days of rain, the Bees took to the road today for a trip through the eastern circuit.

The postponement of yesterday's double header is forcing a terrific load on the none to strong Bees hurling corps, for when the Reds next come here nine games must be played in the space of five days.

The first stop on the Bees' Eastern trip is to be in Brooklyn where they will play four games—single tilts tomorrow and Saturday and a twin bill on Sunday.

Richard Merrill Erickson, who was listed for the past three days as the starting hurler, will again receive the nod from Manager Casey Stengel tomorrow when Sellen Bill Fossel taking the honors in the second clash while Joe Sullivan and Manny Salvo, who won his first start for the Bees, available for Sunday duty.

Two sizzling hurlers joined the squad in time to make the trip while one took a plane for the West Coast.

CAUSE OF BEES SLUMP
Al Piechota and Nick Strincevich, rookies, were released from St. Elizabeth's while Jim Tobin, who was injured in an exhibition game with the Washington Senators on April 11 while attempting to field a knut, was enroute to the Coast to consult his family doctor.

Tobin was in uniform for several days prior to the rain but didn't seem to be able to shake off the effects of his injury despite the fact that physicians here had given him the o.k.

Much of the Bees early slump is traced to the loss of Tobin whom they acquired on the off season from the Pittsburgh Pirates. Tobin was at the time of his injury the leading hurler on the squad and the officials of the team were expecting him to hurl twenty wins this season.

During this stay home the Bees found themselves and grabbed the odd game out of eleven with the Western clubs, splitting even with the Cubs and Pirates while taking the odd game from the St. Louis Cardinals. A feature of this home stay was the sweeping of two double headers, one from the Pirates and the other from the Cardinals.

OPTION LYNN BOY
CLEVELAND, June 27 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians today optioned Catcher Jim Hegon of Lynn, Mass., to Oklahoma City of the Texas League following Frankie Pytlak's return. Hegon was brought here from the Indiana Wilkes-Barre team of the eastern League after Pytlak left for his Buffalo, N. Y., home for medical examination.

The Sox had to the road after a poor road trip prepared to step up action here, using their young home team at Fenway Park.

The Sox had to the road after a poor road trip prepared to step up action here, using their young home team at Fenway Park.

It got even better in Chicago where I got tied into the White Sox for four straight and watched their lead to 2½ games over the then second place Cleveland Indians.

BROWNS SWEET

Then the Deluge! Stepping into St. Louis, where they were expected to mop up, they were hit back on their heels too, times without winning a single engagement.

Moving to Cleveland they lost two single games, then dropped the first game of a Sunday double header before Herb Hesh, finally brought them back to victory road by pitching a 2-0 shutout against the Indians, who were leading the league at the time.

Their seven game losing streak brought them down to third place. In Detroit they did better. Jack Wilson won the first game of a double header though he was hit quite freely but Benny Galka-house was no match for the four-hit pitching of Harold Newhouse in the nip-tuck.

IASH GETS CREDIT
But in the final game of the series Jim Hughy pitched, exactly and it was his misfortune that Herb Hesh got credit for the 3-1 victory.

You wouldn't have given a dime for their chances as the ninth inning started.

Not one of them had set foot on third base in the first eight innings. Lou Finney had doubled and died on second in the first and had single and expired on first in the sixth, while pinch-hitter Stan Spence had doubled but failed to advance in the eighth.

Otherwise, Rookie Gossie had been untouchable.

But our heroes refused to fold up.

The Finney fellow, who had made possible the lone Tiger Tally when he let a Gehring grounder slip through his legs in the seventh, opened the final frame by doubling down the left field foul line for his third hit.

Jimmy Fox followed with a single over second but Finney had to stop at third because Gehring made a phenomenal stop of the ball.

There was no stopping Lou crossing the plate with the tying run, however, when Jim Tabor reached out and tapped a wide pitch for a single to right.

Here Doerr, trying to bait, forced Fox at third and it looked like extra innings.

But Boss Cronin wanted to catch that train for Newton. So he hammered a single, though short which Dick Bartell slowed up just

Park League Bunker Hill Series Open

The Boston Park League will make the third attempt this week to get back in the schedule groove tonight following three days enforced layoff due to rain.

A feud of long standing between the Dick Casey Club of Dorchester and Rosindale Town Club will be emphasized when 5000 semi-pro supporters are expected at Dorchester Town Field in the third meeting of these two clubs this year.

In the initial encounter at Rosindale two weeks ago the Caseys were humbled for the first time in the current campaign when "Ace" Healy turned the trick. In this clash, Casey's pitcher, Jackowitz, established a league knockout record when he fanned 13 Townies though losing his first assignment.

Two new hurlers will receive Park League baptisms of fire when Ronald Siney will go to the mound for West Roxbury against the Crosby Club, while Howie Lorenz does hurling duty for Carter's Clothes against St. Alphonsus in the Back Bay.

Artisan Club of Brighton will continue their first place drive in the West division against Boston Hellenics.

The long awaited local Charleston series between St. Catherine's and Navy Yard, both of whom call Barry Park home, will be inaugurated at Barry Park as a fitting windup.

MARY PRATT HURLS FOR PETS IN SOFTBALL DOUBLEHEADER

That the New England League is a most representative circuit is seen by the lineup at the Garden tonight, where the Olympets play the Bridgeport, Ct., Girls, and Ben Levis' Totem Pole nine faces the Langley Girls from Portland, Me.

Bridgeport will bring a Grade A twirler to the Garden in Margie Johnson, who has won her six starts this season.

Her 1939 record is even more impressive. Last season she won 20 of her 21 starts, her only defeat coming at the hands of the Pets here, 2 to 1.

For Boston, Mary Pratt will make her 14th hill debut. It is a nice spot for Mary to start, because last year she hurled a no-hitter against the same Bridgeport club. Errors permitted the visitors to score their run.

In the other test tonight, the Totem Pole girls from Norumbega face a state champion for the second week in a row. Last week they defeated the state champion Worcester outfit, while tonight's opponent, the Langley girls, hold the Pine Tree state title.

Ben Levis, eager to keep his team at the top of the heap, will use his veteran ace, Babe Boudreau, on the hill tonight.

Honor 'Snappy' O'Connell Tonight

A grand testimonial to a great guy is in promise for tonight when the friends of Frank J. "Snappy" O'Connell gather at the South End Municipal Building to honor the local "Mr. Basketball."

Snappy, one of the greatest basketball players ever developed in New England, has been having a hard time of it recently in the health line and his long string of friends is rallying to keep his spirits high.

Snappy, in his hey-day, played with the old Filton A. C. quintet before moving to the West End K. C. which won the Casey League title in 1921.

Inside Baseball

Ex-Stars Teach Game

Proving itself the most popular phase of school, the new class in "Inside Baseball", introduced to the Playground system by Director Bill Mullern, will move to Rogers Park, Brighton, tomorrow night with classes at 6:15.

Two classes have been held to date, the first at the South Boston Stadium and the other at American Legion Park, East Boston.

The sessions are not only well attended by the youngsters but the old timers flock to the stands to watch the old time stars teach the boys the proper way to play the national pastime.

Buck O'Brien, former pitching star of the Red Sox, is coaching the fine points of pitching, showing them the proper stance to take on the rubber, the proper way to hold the ball and the delivery.

Behind the plate, Jack Ryan, former Red Sox coach, instructs the boys in the art of catching while Jumps' Joe Duggan, former Yankee star, instructs in the hot corner.

Bill Walsh and Joe Gilmore, ex-big leaguers, hand out information on the correct way to play shortstop, second base and the outfield.

Amateurs Battle

At Dilboy Tonight

Rained out of its opening, the Dilboy Post, V. F. W., will get its outdoor amateur boxing schedule under way tonight at Dilboy Field, Somerville, with the first elimination round of the 1940 Golden Glove Championships.

Sanctioned by the New England A. A. U., the carnival promises to produce plenty of fireworks from the initial bout at 8:15 to the grand windup.

Belmont Fetes State Champs

This evening at 6:30 in the school cafeteria the best scholastic diamond aggregation in the state, Belmont high school's Massachusetts State champions and their enthusiastic mentor, Lewis "Polly" Harris, will be tendered a dinner and reception. The Belmont Boosters' committee, co-operating with the town officers' committee, is in charge of the affair.

The more than 300 customers expected to attend have high hopes of seeing Red Sox ball players like Capt. Jimmy Fox, Herb Hash, youthful Dino DiMaggio and the imitable Maurice "Mickey" Harris, all of whom have been invited to the schoolboy spread.

DRAW AIDS COLLEGIAN FAVORITES

MANCHESTER, Vt., June 27 (AP)—Two of the ranking favorites appeared to be well spotted in the draw today as the National Collegiate A. A. golf championship tournament, now blessed by the promise of fair weather after three days of heavy rain, entered the second-round match play staged at Ekwanok.

Johnny Burke of Georgetown, 1938 champion, and Lee Ramsel of Louisiana State, one of last year's quarter-finalists, were so well placed in the upper half of the draw that their golfing paths could not cross until the current field of 32, representing 25 widely-scattered colleges, was reduced to eight for tomorrow's fourth-round matches.

Two other 1939 quarter-finalists—"Skip" Alexander of Duke and Bert McDowell of Louisiana State—appeared to be heading for a third-round clash this afternoon.

Today's Matches

UPPER HALF

Burling Jacobson, Wisconsin, and Lee Ramsel, Louisiana State.
 Cary Muldrew, Mississippi, and Otto Greiner, University of Baltimore.
 John Burke, Georgetown, and F. Dixon Brooke, Virginia.
 Felix Weh, Illinois, and Arnold Zimmerman, Princeton.
 Kenneth Kelly, Southern California, and Bill Clark, Dartmouth.
 John Emery, Michigan, and Peter Page, Princeton.
 Earl Stewart, Louisiana State, and Gordon Weitzel, Northwestern.
 John Holmstrom, Illinois, and Eddie Fox, Holy Cross.

LOWER HALF

Bill Cordingley, Harvard, and Bill Gillett, Ohio State.
 Ray Higgins, Georgetown, and Tom Brook, Iowa State.
 Stanley Kowal, Michigan State, and Bill Hall, Iowa State.
 Andrew Chilton, Texas, and Phil Donahue, Notre Dame.
 C. Foster Brown, Jr., Union, and "Skip" Alexander, Duke.
 Ed Meister, Yale, and Bert McDowell, Louisiana State.
 Frank Newell, U. C. L. A., and Guy Palmer, Duke.
 Harry Haverstick, Swarthmore, and Don Hastedt, Stanford.

As did Bill (Ace) Cordingley of Harvard and Bill Hall of Iowa State, who was one of the last four survivors at Des Moines a year ago.

Burke was scheduled to tee off against F. Dixon Brooke of Virginia, this morning; Cordingley against Bill Gilbert of Ohio State; Hall against Stanley Kowal of Michigan State; Alexander against C. Foster Brown, Jr., of Union; and McDowell against Ed Meister of Yale.

The third consecutive rainy day interfered with yesterday's plans for the completion of the first two rounds. So the tournament officials reduced the semi-final matches from 38 to 18 holes and rescheduled them for tomorrow afternoon. Saturday's final, however, will be a double-round affair.

Despite the unfavorable weather, the tournament has continued with only one upset. That came yesterday when Warren Berl of Stanford, last year's defeated finalist, was eliminated by Ramsel, who gained a 1-up decision.

19-Year-Old Southpaw 'Steals' Collegiate Tennis Spotlight

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 27 (AP)—A 19-year-old southpaw, Seymour Greenberg, is the surprise of the National Intercollegiate Tennis Championships here.

Overlooked in the seedings, Greenberg bowled over the seventh ranked, William Gillespie in the third round yesterday as the original field of 67 was narrowed to 16 in a single day.

Greenberg, a student at Northwestern University and holder of the National Public Parks championship, eliminated Gillespie in straight sets, 6-1, 6-1, Gillespie, representing Miami University, won the third game of each set, breaking through Greenberg's service on one occasion, but except for these instances the left-hander's stroking kept him on the defensive.

MCNEIL HARD PRESSED

Greenberg's performance overshadowed victories turned in by top-seeded Don McNeill, of Kenyon; Joe Hunt, of Navy; and Frank Guernsey, the defending champion from Rice Institute. McNeill was hard pressed to down Ed Kilgus, of Pennsylvania, 6-3, 6-3, but Hunt and Guernsey had it easier. Hunt, one of three not receiving first round byes, disposed of Peter Shonk, of Williams; Lawrence Krieger, of Yale; and Robert Curtis, of Rice; Cliff Owen, of West Chester; and Robert Low, of Stanford, bowed before Guernsey.

SIX FROM CALIFORNIA

Southern California and California each placed three men in the round of 16. Ted Schroeder, George Toley and Bill Reddy are from U. S. C. while Bob Peacock, Bill Canning and Bob Harman represent California. Other survivors, William Talbert, Cincinnati; Isadore Ellis, Pennsylvania; Marion Shane, Kalmar; William Hardie, Miami; Gordon Giles, Utah; and Dave Freedman, Pomona.

KAUFMANN PILOTS WINGS

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 27 (AP)—Anthony (Tony) Kaufmann will succeed Estel Crabtree as manager of the league-leading Rochester Red Wings of the International League. Oliver French, president of the Rochester Baseball Club, announced tonight.

Kaufmann is the third manager to lead the Red Wings this season. Billy Southworth, new St. Louis Cardinal pilot, turned over the post to Crabtree June 1. Two weeks later Crabtree was taken seriously ill.

Deerfield School Crew Tied For Top Honors in Cup Races; Belmont Hill Shell Capsizes

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 27 (AP)—Loomis School sailors from Windsor, Ct., and the Deerfield (Mass.) School crew tied for top honors in the intercollegiate Mallory Cup races that saw a field of 14 reduced to seven.

Loomis and Deerfield each scored a first and a third and picked up 12½ points.

They will decide the cup winner in today's final race with the five other finalists—Kent School, Kent, Ct.; St. Andrews, Middletown, Del.; Hotchkiss, Lakeville, Ct.; Belmont Hill, Belmont, Mass., and Tabor Academy, Marion, Mass.

Kent, with nine points, was third in point standings. Tabor and Belmont Hill tallied six each, and Hotchkiss and St. Andrews got five each.

One casualty marked the races—the Belmont Hill crew capsizing in the final event, going over before the heavy wind that held all day.

St. Mark's School was disqualified after Charles' crew protested being hit in the first preliminary race.

Two races were held on an eight mile triangular course across the bay, while the third was on a straight course from the South Shore into the Naval Academy.

Bees-Reds to Play Three Double Bills

John Quinn, secretary of the Boston Bees, announced last night that the Bees would play three successive double headers with the Reds when the National League champions come to Boston in August.

The Reds were scheduled to play three single games here Monday, Tuesday and yesterday. They were unable to play any of them because of rain. As a result double headers will be played Friday, Aug. 2, Saturday, Aug. 3 and Sunday, Aug. 4.

BUCCS TRAVELING LIKE FLAG WINNER

NEW YORK, June 28 (INS)—The mad scramble known as the National League pennant race is about to get even wilder by virtue of the fact that, as of today, the two fastest traveling clubs are the Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals, which are deep in the second division but threatening to do something about it, according to statistics gathered by Bill Brandt, head of the league's service bureau.

Davis vs. Bates In First Round Of School Golf

GREENWICH, Ct., June 28 (AP)—Charles M. "Chuck" Davis of Lawrenceville, who won medal honors, and Guy Bates of Taft were paired for the first round today in the 29th annual Eastern interscholastic golf championship over the Greenwich Country Club course.

Davis, runner-up last year, posted a 77 yesterday and a 76 Tuesday for a qualifying total of 153. Bates, two-day scores of 87 and 82 gave him 169.

Davis, 20-year-old Amsterdam, N. Y., youth, would have been under 75 had he not taken an eight on the long 14th hole.

Bill Campbell of Exeter, whom Davis ousted out of medal honors by one stroke, met William Wigley of Hill, who qualified with 169.

The Pirates and Cardinals probably are too far back to win as the clubs head toward July 4, traditional gauge on probable outcome of the race, but they are not too far back to get in the battle.

Oddly enough, these two leagues, which were figured among the contenders at the start of the season, have put on their spurt with the aid of additions.

LOPEZ DID IT

The Pirates started when Catcher Al Lopez was lured away from the Boston Bees, and the Cardinals did an abrupt about face with the switch in managers which put Billy Southworth in the pilot's seat previously occupied by Ray Blades.

Whether the injection of new blood into the situation caused the sudden upsets, Mr. Brandt nor we wouldn't know, but Lopez began working with the Pirate pitchers on June 16, and Southworth took over for the Cards just two days sooner. The teams immediately went into high.

Since then the Pirates have won eight out of 11 and the Cards seven out of 12.

This, mind you, by clubs which all season have been mired to their bristles in defeats. They could come on and toughen things up.

HOT N. L. RACE
Manager Frankie Frisch, hard fighter of the old school, was expected to do wonders with the Pirates, but found them so totally inept that the club hasn't yet found the rafted atmosphere of the first division.

Addition of Lopez should accomplish at least that, the answer being that when your pitchers go bad, hire a catcher.

The Cardinal situation is, even more striking, inasmuch as they were favored to win the pennant, but were completely confused instead by the strange tactics of Manager Blades.

Southworth seems to have proved that the club can play ball. And if you think the National League race has been a honey to now, watch it from here on, regardless of which club may eventually win.

College Coaches Ignore Torby, Sole Big Leaguer

College baseball fans, somewhat baffled and perplexed, were laughing up their sleeves today with the release of the Eastern Intercollegiate League All-Star team.

Somehow or other, the coaches who picked the team were now in agreement with scouts of the New York Yankees, reputed for their fine system in picking farm hands for future service with the world's champions.

For Torby MacDonald of Harvard failed to make the "All" team. MacDonald, outfielder, didn't even make the second team, but polled three votes among the honorable mentions.

From the Eastern League, MacDonald was the only player signed by a big league team. The Malden boy affixed his signature to a Yankee contract earlier this week.

Browns Pushing Haney To 'Top Manager' Spot

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK, June 27 (INS)—If the Browns continue to flirt with the first division as they have been doing lately, they will almost surely succeed in having their pilot, little Fred Haney, named as the manager of the year.

Fred has done a remarkable job with the club. When the season opened, the baseball wise men took a look at Fred's nice assortment of cast-offs, promptly picked them to wind up in the American League cellar and the bookies immediately quoted 100 to 1 against their chances.

"What," everybody asked, "is poor Haney going to use for pitchers?"

BROWNS IMPROVING

Well, Fred's pitchers may be nothing to write home about but he has them turning in an occasional good game and when they do his club wins. What's more to the point, the Browns are improving all the time under Fred's guidance and if they finish fifth he will have worked wonders.

His charges didn't do so well yesterday when George Caster, the losingest pitcher in either league, set them down, 9 to 4, largely by virtue of Sam Chapman's base-clogged homer.

The defeat dropped them out of the first division and sent the Yanks up there. With Ruffing giving only six hits and Joe DiMaggio driving in all the runs, the Yanks turned the Indians, 2-1.

Fenelon Returning To Top Condition

The Delair stud's Fenelon, victim of the coughing sickness that raised so much havoc early in the season, is returning steadily to top form. In his latest trial, he worked six furlongs 23.4, 5, 38, 48, 1:02.5 and 1:16. He will make his first competitive appearance at Empire City.

RIZZO, FLOP WITH BUCCS, CLOUTING .515 WITH PHILS

PHILADELPHIA, June 27 (AP)—Johnny Rizzo—the outfielder Pittsburgh and Cincinnati didn't want—is whaling the daylights out of the ball for the Phillies.

Sox Home Today After Sad Trip; Senators Play Here Tomorrow

enough to let Tabor count and Doser catch third.

Thus, Gorsica was ordered to walk Johnny Peacock, filling the sacks, and then was relieved by Al Benton.

The relief hurler fanned Hash, but his third strike was missed by Birdie Teltbets and Doser raced across the platter with the third run.

The game wasn't yet over, though.

UNREARER RUN

After Hash had retired Bartel on a pop and Cramer had taken away an extra base blow from McCosky by making a miracle catch of the latter's 400 foot swat to center, Gehring and Greenberg drew walks. Cronin debated whether or not to change pitchers.

He finally decided to string along with Herbie.

And the man from Minneapolis justified this confidence by forcing Rudy York to hit to the Skipper and he walked to the clubhouse sporting his second win in three days, his seventh triumph of the campaign and a string of 11 scoreless innings.

With perfect support, Jim Bagby might have lasted to gain credit for the win. He was in trouble in each of his seven innings but the only run he yielded was unearned.

With two gone in the seventh, Gehring singled to right and reached second when the ball trickled past Finney. Greenberg then singled sharply to center to rescue the run.

"Hank" had done his darndest to bring in another tally when he singled with Bartel on second in the fifth, but he had made the mistake of driving the ball to left field this time.

Don DiMaggio, racing in and scooping up the pellet like an infielder, cut it loose to the plate.

and Desautels had to wait for Bartel to arrive to be tagged out.

Up to the ninth, that brilliant defensive bit as well as fine catches by Cramer, with two Tigers on in the third, and Finney, with two hostiles on in the sixth, appeared to belong in the category of wasted effort.

But they had to be labeled life-savers after the Croninmen's courageous comeback in the final frame.

Star Dust

By the Associated Press

Joe DiMaggio, Yankees—Drove in all New York's runs with two singles in 14 victory over Indians. Sam Chapman, Athletics—Hit home run with bases loaded and had perfect day at plate with five hits to beat Browns.

John Rizzo, Phils, and Vince DiMaggio and Spud Davis, Pirates—Former won first game with two-run homer and got six hits in seven chances in two games; DiMaggio and Davis each hit two home runs to lead Pirates' attack in double-header.

Lon Finney, Red Sox—Continued hitting streak by getting two doubles and single against Tigers. Luke Appling, White Sox—Led 15-hit offensive against Senators with two doubles and single.

Harry Danning and John McCarthy, Giants—Former made last hits, one of them a homer, and later singled with bases loaded in tenth inning to beat Cards, 10-8.

Rizzo, Phils	1

Chapman, Athletics	1

The slugging Italian, traded to the Phils by Cincinnati for Mortie Aronovich on June 15, joined the Phils on June 18. Since then he has clouted 17 hits in 33 times at bat for a lusty .515 average, nearly double his season mark of .261 at the time he left the Reds.

His latest feat came in a double-header against Pittsburgh yesterday, when he belted six hits—including a homer, triple and double—in seven trips to the plate.

BLANTON, TOO

The day's work obviously gave Rizzo considerable satisfaction, but for Manager Frankie Frisch of the Pirates it was a double headache.

Frisch, who traded Rizzo to Cincinnati for Vince DiMaggio early this year, saw his former leftfielder drive in all of the Phils' four runs in the first game while Cy Blanton, another ex-Pirate, set the Pittsburghers down with seven safeties and a pair of markera.

DiMaggio, however, pounded out a home run apiece in the opener and nightcap—which the Pirates won, 11 to 6—to bring his total for the season to eight, the same number Rizzo has clouted for the Reds and Phils.

Rizzo, who came up as a rookie two years ago, started his streak against Cincinnati on June 18, getting a single in three times up. He got two in five against the Reds on June 20.

ROBBED BY GLEESON

He went hitless against the Cubs on June 21, although Jimmy Gleeson twice robbed him of hits by leaping against the center field wall at the 405-foot mark.

Since then he has batted 22 times and hit safely 14, swatting homers in four straight games. Rizzo's season average of .310 leads the Phils who, as Manager Doc Prothro has been wont to say on many occasions, are woefully shy on power.

Here is Johnny's record since coming to Philadelphia:

Straw Boss Breaks Record

By the Associated Press
It will take a lot of horse to break the record set yesterday by Mrs. L. E. Stoddard, Jr.'s speedy Straw Boss in the third running of the rich Indian River Steeplechase Handicap at Delaware.

Over a soggy, heavy course, the chestnut gelded son of Carlaris and Enid negotiated the 16 jumps that comprise the testing two-and-a-half-mile course in 4:50 1/5, clipping four seconds off the mark set by Warsprite July 3, 1939.

The fact Straw Boss was able to set his mark on such unstable footing made the feat sensational. The mark, horsemen believe, will stand for some time to come.

More than 6500 fans saw the horse boost his earnings for the year to $8550. In second place was the Rokeby Stable's Good Chance.

Challedon Misses Out

By Associated Press
Challedon was "all dressed up with no place to go" Wednesday. William L. Brann's gnat handicap champion was entered in a race at Delaware Park scheduled for today, but the race failed to fill, and so admirers of the great horse will not be able to see him run.

That race was the only one in the Delaware condition book for which the Brann charger was eligible.

The famous son of Challenger 2d and Laura Gal will remain at Aqueduct Park. He has not been under silks since his convincing victory over Kayak 2nd in last fall's special at Pimlico.

Backstretch Brevities From Downs

By TOM SHEHAN
Racing Secretary Charles J. McLennan has received word that W. L. Brann's Challedon will be shipped here next week and that George D. Widener's Eight Thirty will be shipped here as soon as Delaware Park closes on July 4.

Both these horses will finish their preparations here for the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap, mile and one furlong feature of the current meeting. Challedon resumed training this spring after being out of action since last fall. Eight Thirty won the Toboggan Handicap and the Suburban Handicap this spring and turned in his only bad race when he was beaten by Third Degree in the Metropolitan Handicap.

The halter-men were busy Wednesday . . . Sekkle and Almsworth took Count Fitz, which finished third, out of the first race for $1250 . . . Mrs. Val Wyse took High Arch, which finished second, out of the fifth race for $1500 . . . Glenn Felner took Bow and Arrow, which finished fourth, out of the seventh race.

Jockey Walter Lee Taylor, who is giving Maurice Berger a battle for riding honors at the meeting, is in demand for stake engagements . . . He will ride Dusky Duke in the $15,000 Yankee Handicap . . . He is also engaged to ride Be Jabbers in the Hannah Dustin Handicap on July 6 . . . Caloxico will be his next stake mount when he runs in the Paul Revere Handicap on July 13 . . . Friday night he leaves for New York to ride Many Stings in the Brooklyn Handicap on Aqueduct . . .

W. E. Snyder cancelled his mounts Wednesday because of sickness . . . Balcony has been retired to the W. C. Johnson breeding farm at Bristol, R. I. . . Eddie Connolly, Cambridge born rider whose family now claims Manchester, N. H., as its residence, won his second race with Little Banner in the eighth event on the card . . . Johnny Mearle and Albert Bodini had doubles to their credit . . . Red War and Panoroscope worked out after the races . . . County Bond got another slice of a purse when he finished third in the seventh race.

Braddock May Referee Baer-Galento Bout

BRIDE NEAR DEATH IN CAR CRASH

Stop That Man—As fists flew in the Virginia delegation, there was also plenty of excitement under the New York standard (above) in demonstration that followed the placing of Wendell Willkie's name in nomination at the Republican Convention in Philadelphia. Here, enthusiasts grapple for the standard . . . as a Philadelphia policeman attempts to push his way into the center of the battle to join fellow officers.
